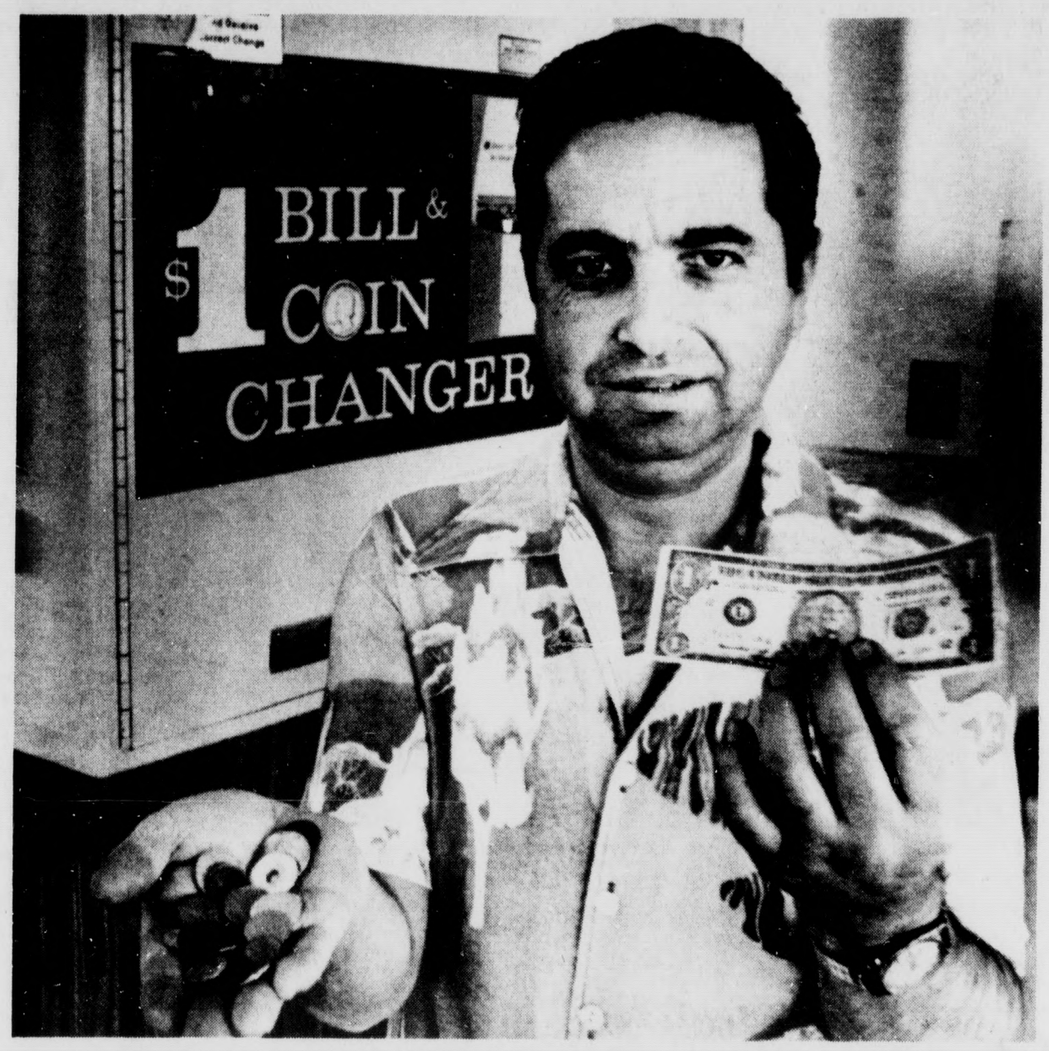
Inept but very illegal counterfeits



Laundromat owner Henry Vasconcellos and counterfeit bill, phony coins

Possibly the funniest - looking counterfeit money the Valley has ever known has been turning up in a few places.

The bills — ones and twenties have been found so far — are gray Xeroxed copies of the real thing, crudely pasted together to provide both a front and back view.

Livermore police are still trying to imagine how a grocery clerk in one of the supermarkets was gullible enough to accept a Xeroxed twenty about a week ago.

Laundromat owner Henry Vasconcellos of Pleasanton was surprised to discover a bogus $1 in his coin changing machine last week. He carries it around in his wallet to show his friends.

"I didn't turn it in to the police," he says, "because I didn't lose anything. My coin changer (in the Wash and Dry Laundromat at the Granada shopping center, Livermore) will accept anything after it's put in there three times. But it won't pay out any change."

As president of the Northern California Coin - Op Association, Henry says local vendors may start looking out for a bill with the same serial number as the Xeroxed money. "If you catch somebody," he declares, "they've had it."

The penalty for counterfeiting — no matter how inept — is up to 15 years in a federal prison. According to the Secret Service in San Francisco, who handle counterfeiting incidents, there are strict laws stating that U.S. currency may be reproduced only for certain purposes — educational, historical or numismatic — and then no closer in size than two and a half times larger than the actual bill or two and a half times smaller.

Technically, it's a violation of the law even to possess a counterfeit bill. Anyone who has one should turn it in to the Secret Service (P.O. Box 36037, 450 Golden Gate, San Francisco, CA 94102) with a notation on how, when and where it was received.

Counterfeit bills are only one of the woes of those whose livelihood is tied to coin - operated machines. According to Henry, vendors are also trying to track a man and woman who have been breaking into coin - operated machines in the Valley.

He also gas a gaping handful of slugs, wasers and foreign coins people have tried to use in his machines in the last — also a thoroughly illegal attempt at petty ripoff.

Lab brass— don't oppose bargaining

LIVERMORE — Management at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory is not opposed to collective bargaining for employes, but feels the recently - defeated "Stark Amendment" is an "unusual" method which does not allow for enforcement of its provisions, spokesmen said yesterday.

James Carothers, associate director, and Jack Kahn, deputy associate director, both of the human resources and laboratory relations division, and Jeff Garberson of the public information office, yesterday told The Times that the University of California opposed the bargaining provision to an appropriations bill because it did not apply equally to all nine campuses and four research laboratories.

But management has no objection to collective bargaining becoming a reality at the Livermore Lab, they all agree.

"I don't care one way or the other. If it (collective bargaining) is passed, we will operate in conformance with it. If not, we will proceed under the Brown Act," said Carothers.

Despite claims to the contrary by employe representatives, the Lab did not lobby against the Stark Amendment, although LLL does maintain a Washinqton representative. The amendment, which would have provided for collective bargaining by LLL employes, was defeated on a procedural move by Sen. S.I. Hayakawa (R-Calif.) on the Senate floor recently. The freshman senator said he toured the Lab but found none of the "turmoil and strife" that would justify passage of the amendment.

Employe group representatives said that Hayakawa was shielded from rank and file employes while at Livermore, and declined an invitation to address employes.

Carothers, Kahn and Garberson each said yesterday that none knew whether Hayakawa had talked to workers or their representatives during his visit. Each denied knowledge that Hayakawa had rejected an invitation to address employes.

Kahn said that while the University maintains lobbyists, LLL does no lobbying formally or informally.

"We have certainly discussed the Stark Amendment with Berkeley personnel, however," he added.

The University, as a matter of routine, questions all segments to be affected by upcoming legislation on whether it is clear, if certain parts are acceptable, and asks for recommendations, Kahn said.

Carothers said 11 grievances were filed against the Lab in 1976, challenging Stark's assertion that "hundreds" of complaints are received by the congressman's office each year regarding LLL employe disputes.

"We're not trying to thwart employes," Carothers said, stating that "procedures are there" for complaints. The small number of complaints received "is probably the situation at the Lab" and not the amount Stark quoted, Carothers said.

None of the management spokesman would comment on AB 1091, a bill that would allow collective bargaining throughout the UC system, because they weren't familiar with all its ramifications. —by Bill Cauble

Easter Day tragedy at Del Valle

A jubliant Easter Sunday afternoon at Del Valle Regional Park ended in a tragedy for the family of David Quinata, 18, of Union City who was killed when an automatic handgun accidentally discharged while he and a friend were shooting targets.

According to Sgt. Terry Spradlin of the East Bay Regional Park District, Quinata and Frank Concepcion, 17, were shooting bottles off a log near a fire trail located on a ridge overlooking the south beach area.

"Evidentally the gun jammed," Spradlin said. "When Concepcion tried to clear the weapon it went off twice, striking Quinata in the side and Concepcion in the hand."

Park officials tried unsuccessfully to revive Quinata after his friends carried him down the ridge near the parking area. A helicopter circled overhead as a four-wheel drive vehicle transported the wounded 18-year-old to an ambulance which led a caravan to the hospital.

Quinata was dead on arrival at Valley Memorial Hospital and Concepcion was treated and released.

The two were part of a group of 150 people from Union City who joined a record crowd of fishermen, frisbee-throwers, and sunbathers in celebrating Easter at Del Valle.

Quinata, Concepcion, and two unidentified witnesses had left the large group to go into the woods when the shooting occurred.

Park officials said that four shots had been fired before the gun jammed. The weapon, an Italian-made .25 caliber, "Saturday night special," was recovered at the hospital. Officials have not determined who purchased the gun.

Although there is an ordinance prohibiting possession and discharge of firearms in the park, no one has been cited for any violations. The case is pending investigation by detectives from the East Bay Regional Park District and the District Attorney's office.

Shotgun robbery at Ernie's

A shotgun toting bandit and two accomplices brazlingly robbed Ernie's Liquors in downtown Dublin yesterday afternoon taking an undisclosed cache of cash. No one was hurt in the robbery.

Sheriffs deputies said a man in his early 30s leveled a shotgun at the store manager and demanded the money. He and his partner jumped into a waiting older model maroon Buick Riviera with a woman at the wheel and sped away on Amador Valley Boulevard.

Talks go on, strike nears

No contract settlement appears in sight as a teacher - imposed strike deadline in the Amador Valley Joint High School District nears.

Teachers several weeks ago voted to walkout if the teacher unit negotiating team did not return a contract for ratification by Thursday midnight.

Any walkout would idle some 4,800 ninth through twelfth grade students at four district campuses and up to 212 teachers. Classified employees have said they would probably vote on whether to honor any subsequent picket lines.

Teacher negotiator Gary Paulus and the administration's Carl Krause met Monday and agreed to continue one - to - one talks today.

Krause, assistant superintendent for personnel, did not indicate any movement on the crucial issues of binding arbitration and salary on the part of either side.

Carl Krause

Dave Woolworth, president of the Amador Valley Secondary Educators Association, said Monday no meetings of any kind had been held over the Easter vacation and, by late Monday afternoon, had not conferred with Paulus or negotiating team chief Enoch Haga.

The Amador district teachers' representative council will meet this afternoon at Shannon Park Community Center, with a possibility that reps will vote for a meeting of the general membership.

Woolworth said there was no intention at this point of the teachers backing away from the strike deadline date.

He indicated that if the negotiating team did not return a tentative contract for ratification by midnight

Moonies

Custody overturned

SAN FRANCISCO — An appeals court yesterday temporarily overturned conservatorship orders that had given parents of five young members of the Unification Church — including 23 - year - old John Hovard of Danville — the right to try to "deprogram" their children.

"This means the young adults can go wherever they want to and do whatever they want," said Ralph Baker, a church attorney, after the proceedings.

But it was a hollow victory for the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's church, which already had lost three of the "faithful five" whose parents had sought to have them deprogrammed Another church attorney, Jerome Falk, said at the beginning of the proceedings that Barbara Underwood, 25, Leslie Brown, 24, and Jacqueline Katz, 21, had opted to leave the church.

The state Court of Appeal accepted Falk's petition to withdraw as their attorney.

Remaining in the church are Janice Kaplan, 24, and John Hovard, 23, who are now free to leave their parents if they desire.

The parents of all five were granted 30-day conservatorship custody of their children March 24 by a Superior Court judge who found they were subject to deception by "artful and designing persons."

Hovard said he would "probably" return to the church. Miss Kaplan, who unlike Hovard has agreed to talk with deprogrammers, disappeared into a locked room with Falk after the proceedings and was not available for comment.

After the three-judge panel of the state Court of Appeal announced its decision, church member Bethie Rubinstein rushed up to Miss Kaplan. Her way was blocked by Miss Kaplan's mother, Beatrice Kaplan, and a shoving match broke out.

"I just wanted to say hello," Miss Rubinstein said later. "She was my best friend."

The appeals court's action put a stay on the conservatorship rulings granted by Superior Court Judge S. Lee Favuris March 24 after a 12- day hearing. The Court of Appeal now must consider whether to overturn the conservatorships for good or whether to reinstate them for the original 30-day period ordered by Favuris.

Woman may lead trustees

LIVERMORE — Livermore Unified School District trustee Betty Carrell is in line for presidency of the school board when new officers are chosen at tonight's organizational meeting.

Currently clerk of the board, Carrell will succeed Manuel Prado as head of the five - member board if the traditional rotation system is maintained. Elected two years ago, she used to work as an engineer at Sandia Lab before her two children came along. She and her husband, Jim, live on Armida Court.

Jan Brice, who received the most votes in the March 8 school board election, will be sworn in tonight. According to the county Registrar of Voters final tallies, Brice collected 3,782 votes. Also elected to full terms were Manuel Prado with 3,564 votes and James T. Davis polling 3,107.

Immediately following the organizational meeting will be a regular public meeting of the school board, featuring a jammed agenda. Trustees will look at 21 business items including a strongly worded statement from the district's art teachers asking for no more than 24 students per class for safety reasons.

Potentially dangerous tools such as band saws, drill presses, grinders, kilns, oxy - acetelyne torches, acid, paper cutters, razors, wood gouges and chemical dyes are used in rooms designed for relatively small classes, the art teachers argue. "...We are often sabotaged and prevented from reaching our goals from overcrowded classes, lack of adequate space, lack of adequate financial support and lack of adequate administrative support," says a memorandum dated last May and included with this year's secondary art curriculum guide being submitted to the school board.

"Should a larger (than 1 teacher per 24 students) ratio be adopted by the district, we cannot and should not be held responsible for the physical safety or adequate instructional procedures within these classes," says the memo.

The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. in the Education Center, 685 Las Positas Blvd. Copies of the full agenda are available there in advance.

Staff says 'no' to Nipper

Alameda County Bureau

"Rancho Sunol Estates" is an "untimely" project that "would not serve" the public interest, says the county planning department in their final Environmental Impact Report.

In recommending denial for Carl Nipper's proposed 95-home development on the Pleasanton Ridge, the staff cites:

- Development "inconsistent with policies of the county general plan, Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO), State Water Resources Control Board and the California Regional Water Quality Control Board."
- "(L)iabilities to the county (and) inefficient and higher costs of services" that pose "major problems" in providing services to "outlying urbanized" areas.
- And "precedents for isolated development and premature conversion of land to urban use."

A request by Nipper to have the county planning commission evaluate his preliminary land use and development plan yesterday was continued until next Monday. Planning commissioners will pass their recommendation on to county supervisors.

Varying "physical impacts" of the project — geology, soils, drainage, transporation and circulation, schools and solid waste disposal — may to a certain degree be alleviated, the staff concedes.

But "significant impacts remaining relate to air quality and energy, provision of public services, growth inducing effects and inconsistencies with various governmental policies relating to orderly and efficient urban growth."

Nipper and partner Paul Heck take broadsides from a host of government agencies.

LAFCO Executive Officer Roland Mayne criticizes the proposed homeowners association as responsible for maintenance of common areas since "they usually cannot keep up with the costs, and the county is then forced to assume provision of some of these services."

He also warns of problems with the "package sewer treatment plant" and the county's provision of "municipal type services" to the area.

The county Health Services Agency also chastises the proposed sewer plant, recommending instead connection to the City of Pleasanton's municipal sewer treatment plant.

A flock of state agencies also add unfavorable comments.

The final report also contains letters of support from geological engineers Burkland and Associates, the Santa Clara County Farm Bureau, University of California Cooperative Extension, and, as cited by Nipper, the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Partner Paul Heck includes a six-page, single - spaced letter rebutting the draft EIR.

Anne Williams and Jack Bloom of Metropolitan Transportation Commission discuss Valley transportation needs with Virginia Loewe, (right). She is an aide to Supervisor Valerie Raymond of Alameda County's first district.

VTC asks Valley survey

LIVERMORE — The Valley Transportation Committee (VTC) may hop on a survey bandwagon with AC Transit in an effort to determine needs of the Valley's transportationally handicapped.

Yesterday morning at the Veterans Memorial Building in Livermore, VTC members agreed to write the AC Transit Special Needs Committee and ask to join their effort.

The proposed survey that will be done for AC Transit by Crain and Associates of Menlo Park will deal with the West Bay area. VTC will request the Valley portion of East Bay be included.

According to AC Transit officials, it would take an extra $3500 to survey the Valley.

Valerie Raymond, supervisor of Alameda County's first district, said she would see if the revenue sharing pot could be squeezed enough in her county to foot its portion of the bill.

Another spokesman suggested the cities and unincorporated areas involved could perhaps repay their respective counties.

The rush to obtain funding is due to Crain and Associates time schedule. They hope to begin their survey April 18. It should take three to four weeks to complete.

The proposed survey will have three parts.

Sending letters and making phone calls to the general public will come first. Next is a self - identification survey. People will seek Crain and Associates and state their needs. They will learn about the survey via newspapers, TV and radio.

The last stage involves contacting specific agencies to get their viewpoint on area needs.

Crain and Associates are a consulting firm. They are experienced in getting information involving needs of special populations.

Lila Euler reminded VTC members that the Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA) had done a survey four years ago that included similar information.

"Perhaps there may be some information available in that report that would be less costly to utilize," Euler suggested.

Other VTC members said it might be wiser to let AC Transit control the survey since the information collected would be more compatible to requirements.

"After all, is already established," Said Raymond. "It would be more economical to have them expand their existing service than to try to set up and run such a service ourselves."

Dee Manning, chairwoman of VTC, received permission from other board members to write a letter to Alameda County requesting funding as well as to AC Transit requesting inclusion in their survey.

Phil Flores, chairman of the San Ramon Area Committee on Aging, suggested seeking help from Contra Costa County so the needs of the unincorporated portion of San Ramon could be met.

Transportation:

COVA aid may be on way

LIVERMORE — If the Congress of Valley Agencies (COVA) can keep its act together, it will be glad to lend assistance to the Valley Transportation Committee (VTC), according to Lila Euler, COVA representative.

Euler also serves on the VTC and is a director of the Valley Community Services District (VCSD).

"If COVA is not dissolved, as has been proposed, the members have voted unanimously to do whatever would be most beneficial for the Valley Transportation Committee," she reported to other VTC members yesterday morning at the Veterans Memorial Building in Livermore.

COVA is a consortium of governmental bodies serving Dublin, Livermore and Pleasanton.

VTC sought COVA assistance in the belief their sponsorship could be instrumental in obtaining technical assistance from AC Transit and the Metropolitan Transportation Commission.

The VTC is seeking ways and means to fulfill transportation needs for special populations in the Valley.

"This would be a terrible time to do away with COVA," Euler said. "Especially now that we are getting into the area of specialized transportation needs."

She said the Pleasanton City Council would meet last night to discuss COVA's fate. She indicated the Livermore City Council had already made a decision to separate from COVA.

"VCSD would like to have COVA continue. They feel there is a definite need for it," Euler stated.

VTC has also asked VCSD for aid. VCSD is not interested in getting into the transportation business per se, according to Paul Ryan, general manager for VCSD. But he and VCSD board members agreed to seek enough legislative powers to be able to lend other types of assistance.

School strike time nears

Thursday that teachers would not be in their classrooms Friday morning.

However, both sides have received a list of five possible fact - finders, the initial step in the fact - finding process. Administraion nd teachers next would settle on one person to hold a fact - finding hearing and return the name of that person to the Educational Employment Relations Board (EERB). A hearing date would then be scheduled.

Neutral observers believe that for either side to take an arbitrary step at this point, whether it be closing of negotiations by the board or a strike by teachers, would be contradictory to the lawful procedures of collective bargaining.

The board, in fact, could do no such thing (such as occurred in the Pleasanton district) until impasse proceedings were completed.

The administration reiterates that any walkout by teachers would be in violation of state laws.

Krause also told The Times Monday they would appeal a Superior Court judge's decision to deny a request for retrial on the matter of interest on step and column increases, payment of step and column and a $1,000 attorney's fee.

It was also learned that an unfair labor practices case involving the Amador administration, and filed by district teachers, had been postponed to early next month.

Injury in arson fire at school

LIVERMORE — A fireman received slight injuries Sunday night while carrying fire fighting equipment to a school fire believed set by arsonists.

John Moyles, 30, was treated at Valley Memorial Hospital for a sprained ankle, after the fire in a portable classroom trailer at Arroyo Seco School.

"It was the second attempt to start a fire at this school the same night," said David O'Connor, Livermore fire prevention officer. He said the plastic window covering on the door of the portable resource center was ignited and flames jumped to the paneling inside.

"We discovered a similar attempt to ignite a window pane on the main building," he said, noting he was able to ignite a similar piece of plastic in 30 seconds with a butane cigarette lighter. "It was a free burning flame then."

There are no suspects in the fire which resulted in $225 damage, said O'Connor.

"I'm hoping the school system will utilize their reward program to uncover some more information," he added.

Drought hurts

Lesher News Bureau

MARTINEZ — Crops in Contra Costa County will suffer from the drought this year as they did last year, predicts Ken Danielson, county agricultural commissioner.

Drought in 1976 resulted in 9.2 per cent less income for farmers in agricultural crop and livestock products, Danielson said.

Get the ambulance out

PLEASANTON — Residents of Gyson Court in Val Vista will protest the presence of a Tri - Valley Ambulance Crew in their midst when the planning commission meets tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the City Council Chambers, 30 W. Angela St.

The residents don't mind that three crew members live in a home on Gyson Court, but they don't like the fact the crew responds to emergencies from the home.

The planning staff has recommended that the ambulance crew be given a couple of months to find a residence closer to a main arterial street.

The residents' complaints center on allegations of excessive speed and supposed danger to children living on the court.

Bob Lee, operations manager of Tri - Valley Ambulance, told The Times yesterday that the crew is well - trained and knows it can't turn on the siren until it reaches Hopyard Road, which is .3 miles from Gyson Court.

"The city is trying to tell us that the fact the ambulance leaves that home means it's a business situation," said Lee. "Well, what about fire captains who take their cars home and then respond to a fire at night from their homes?"

Lee said that only one employee parks his car on Gyson Court; the other cars and the ambulance are kept in the garage or the driveway. He said he took down license numbers of all cars parked on the court and asked the planning staff to track down the residents' addresses. "We think they'll find all the cars belong to the residents or friends visiting them," said Lee.

Bill Bennett, a resident who is one of the leaders in the protest, said: "They've already exceeded speed limits on runs they've made. And there are more cars on the court, some of them belonging to employes. There are 30 kids on that court and 62 in the neighboring one."

The ambulance crew has been there since December and neighbors complained to the city a week after the crew moved in, but it was only recently a hearing was scheduled, said Bennett.

"We are not contesting the fact that this is a vital service," said Bennett. "But we think it is a location which is not conducive to getting to a place fast. A place on Hopyard Road would be ideal. The city is subsidizing them at $27,000 a year."

Lee said that access to Hopyard Road takes probably a minute and a half and consists of only two right turns. He felt it amounts to good access to the entire city.

As far as danger to neighborhood children is concerned, Lee said, "Safety is something which we value greatly; that's our job. Our people wouldn't jeopardize anyone's safety, including our own."

Brown given power

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislation that would give Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. power to ration electricity was approved Monday without debate in the California Assembly.

The bill would amend the California Emergency Services Act to allow the governor to declare a state of emergency and mitigate a "rapid, unforeseen shortage of energy" resulting from a foreign embargo of oil, sabotage or natural disaster such as the drought.

During the 1973 Arab oil embargo, then-Gov. Ronald Reagan declared a state of emergency, but his attempt to allocate gasoline was challenged by four lawsuits.

Fear and a flight for Batista

Talk of renewed detente with Cuba has sparked many memories for Cuban - born Nellie Frobose.

Now married to a Lawrence Livermore Laboratory computer scientist she met in New York, Frobose is happy with her American citizenship. She is taking a course in Latin American history at Cal State Hayward to discover her roots.

She is forming her political opinions now about Cuba, but her direct experience all came before she was 11 and immigrated to the United States.

She just missed death from a counterrevolutionary terrorist bomb planted in the women's lounge in a Havana Woolworth's store. She saw a cheering mob rush into the streets the day Castro took over, though her grandmother was afraid it was a Batista trap and the celebrants would be shot down.

Years later in New York, she learned that her natural father flew Batista to exile in the United States. And there was the memory of a carefree picnic at the Bay of Pigs the weekend before it was invaded by Cuban exiles, a happier memory than the machine - gunning of a neighbor's house for a half hour one night by Castro agents who thought they had Batista's lawyer trapped.

And then there was the time the ground - to - air missile (there was one in each neighborhood) exploded accidentally.

The most exciting experience was the day Castro caputured Havana, said Frobose. She and her family were bound for a cemetery to freshen the graves of relatives, a Cuban custom on the first day of the year.

"People rushed into the streets, some in their nightclothes, shouting wildly. Then everyone sang the national anthem. It was like when you hear a marching band. It really felt like the brotherhood of man. There was a closeness, everyone was happy, people were rejoicing," said Frobose.

"My grandmother was scared when it happened. When another dictator, Machado, was in power, he sent word out over the radio that he had left. When the people rushed out of their houses and cheered, he had them shot with machine guns. This time many people were afraid it was another ruse."

Nellie Frobose ... memories of Cuba

But it was real and by a quirk of fate, it fell to Frobose's natural father, who left the family when Frobose was a baby, to fly Batista to the United States. She didn't learn this until many years later when relatives in New York told her about it.

Frobose was not aware of the politics at the time, but she picked up vibrations from her elders that things were not going well. Politics were something you just didn't discuss when Batista was in power and Frobose could see how nervous that made everyone.

After Castro took over, the attitude was much different, she said. "We had ground - to - air missiles in every neighborhood because we knew that an invasion would come and we knew it would be at the Bay of Pigs. One day there was an explosion and everyone ran out to see what it was. The rocket had exploded. Under Batista, if people had heard an explosion, they would be afraid and hide."

Most Cubans were very poor and Frobose feels Castro's revolution was good for them. "The old govermnment was very corrupt. The schools were bad because teachers were not hired on merit, but they paid the government for their positions."

The attitudes of the big Cuban exile community in Miami sound like they want to go back and overthrow Castro, but most of them are satisfied middle class people who would remain in America if Castro was driven out, said Frobose.

She thinks that the new overtures to Castro by the United States were invited by the bearded leader because he does not like some of the internal political things, like more bureaucracy, which the Russians apparently are asking of him.

Quiet hearing expected

LIVERMORE — Public Works Director Dan Lee says he isn't expecting any controversy to arise when the county Airport Land Use Commission (ALUC) holds a public hearing April 20 for a proposed airport policy plan.

Heavy emphasis is made in the county's plan on land use compatibility, noise levels and safety zones for possible emergency landings and accidents. Public testimony is expected.

"ALUC has said it is favorable to the Livermore Airport Master Plan," Lee told The Times. "Our airport committee has not yet decided if it is even necessary to attend the hearings."

He indicated the matter would be discussed when the airport committee meets Thursday night. Meanwhile, Lee expects to talk with the ALUC staff to "get an idea what will be covered at the hearing."

ALUC administrative officer William H. Fraley has asked for specific testimony on noise lines and noise easements.

One technical question to be resolved is whether to adopt noise contour lines on land use maps while taking into account factors such as existing land use configurations and community attitudes.

The contour lines would be used to establish noise impact zones within which new homes and other land uses sensitive to high noise levels would not be approved by ALUC.

The commission must also decide if the noise lines should be "normalized" to adjust for the degree to which aircraft noise levels differ from background noise levels.

In addition to Livermore, the county's airport policy plan covers the Oakland and Hayward airports. All three jurisdictions were urged by ALUC to adopt specific airport plans.

Livermore's airport master plan was reviewed by city council recently, but sent the document back to the local committee and the finance director's office for clarification of fiscal projections.

Lee said he met with Finance Director George Nolan last week to discuss preliminary groundwork.

Ramsey mum on re-election

By RICK VOGT
Lesher News Bureau

MARTINEZ — Sheriff Harry Ramsay won't say until fall whether he'll seek re-election in 1978.

In response to speculation by some department members that he wouldn't seek a second term as sheriff, Ramsay told Lesher Newspapers Monday that he hasn't decided what his political future will be.

Ramsay today will receive his 30-year pin for county employment.

Rumors in the SheriffS Department have it that there is a lengthy list of sergeants and captains who want to replace their boss as sheriff if he does not seek re-election.

Ramsay won a four-year term in 1974 after serving 15 years as undersheriff in the shadow of his brother - in - law, former sheriff Walter Young of Lafayette, who retired.

Ramsay said he is confident that he could be re-elected sheriff with ease.

At this point, Ramsay said it is too early to say what his political plans are.

In the past, he has talked of seeking higher office, but noted Monday that he wouldn't try for seats held by Assemblyman Dan Boatwright, D-Concord, and State Sen. John Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, without first determining what those legislators' plans are.

He indicated he wouldn't run against either Boatwright or Nejedly because they are "established politicians."

"I'll make a statement in the early fall," Ramsay said.

"There are a lot of things that I want to consider," he added.

Ramsay noted that he is 55 years old and that under state law can continue to seek re-election until he is 70.

Ramsay began working for the sheriff's office as a deputy sheriff in 1947.

Three R's fall down in public

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of three articles on the quality of American Education. It deals with how well today's students can use what they learn in school in everyday life.

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Today's students have learned the traditional skills of reading, writing and arithmetic, but they often do not know how to use these abilities in everyday life.

That's the general conclusion of a series of studies by the National Assessment of Educational Progress — NAEP — a federally funded project designed to measure children's knowledge in a variety of fields.

Educators generally agree that the concern which used to be focused on whether Johnny could read, has shifted to worry over whether Johnny understands the words and is functionally as well as technically literate.

The U.S. Office of Education estimates that there are 23 million functionally illiterate, unable to perform such basic skills as reading a train schedule. Recent court cases in California and New York have raised the question of whether schools, like doctors, can be charged with malpractice for failing to prepare students for adult life.

Tests are designed to measure how well students can take information they are given and use it to answer common questions involving money, nutrition and government.

The NAEP recently summarized the results of tests over the past decade to develop profiles of students at ages 9, 13 and 17. The findings were most encouraging when it came to the youngest group. Educators report that it is too soon to say whether these findings mean that the quality of education is definitely improving. But they express hope that the test scores will continue to rise as the youngsters move through school.

The study found that 9-year olds have improved their reading and writing skills in recent years. They can read simple stories and write letters to their friends; they are tolerant of people's cultural differences and believe in an orderly society.

Comparing the results of two sets of ests, the NAEP reported that black 9-year-olds in particular increased their reading skills from 1971 to 1975. The average percentage of this group answering reading items correctly increased 4.8 percentage points in the four-year period; the increase for white 9-year olds "can read, write, add, subtract, divide and multiply — if told to do so. But they don't, by themselves, use these skills to solve everyday problems."

Ina V. S. Mullis, an analyst with the NAEP and one of the authors of the latest study, said: "Compared to 13-year olds at the turn of the century, the fact that today's 13-year olds have ... a variety of skills and knowledge could be considered quite encouraging.

"However, 13-year-olds, in general, do not realize the potential uses of the skills and facts they have learned."

As an example, the study noted that only about half the students could read and understand detailed instructions in order to determine long-distance telephone rates or the conditions of membership in a book club.

The study also found that 13- year-olds' knowledge of reference materials and how to use them is superficial. Ninety-four per cent of those surveyed knew that a dictionary is used to find the meanings of words, but only 78 per cent of them could take the first three letters of a word and figure out, from the guide words on the dictionary page, where the word they were looking up would be located.

The students also were given a sample index from a newspaper and asked five simple questions to test their knowledge. Only 40 per cent answered all questions correctly in 1975, a decrease of two percentage points from 1971.

In both years, girls' achievement levels were about 5 percentage points higher than boys'.

When it came to arithmetic, the students were asked to compare prices for different size packages of rice and choose the one with the lowest cost per ounce. Only one-fourth of the students were successful; half chose the biggest box without considering the cost.

The NAEP profile of 17-year olds was the least encouraging. "Seventeen - year - olds can read, write and compute in well structured situations," said Don Phillips, an NAEP analyst. "But they have difficulty applying their knowledge in new situations. They don't do well on problems that require more than one step and can't organize their thoughts in writing. Indications are that 17-year-olds' knowledge levels have slipped slightly over the last seven years."

The study showed that most 17-year-olds think that they are good readers, but only half are able to read at the college freshman level; most have thought about their future jobs, but less than one-third have talked with a counselor about career plans; they support political and legal equality, but almost one-third think it is not important to vote. Only 1 per cent could balance a checkbook.

Youngsters can study environment

A $300,000 environmental education grant, which will result in $6,102,671 in school - community programs involving 371,243 students, has been approved by Wilson Riles, state Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Funded through the sale of personalized license plates, the programs are designed to help youngsters understand the need for controlling environmental pollution and for the conservation of water, energy and other resources.

Most of the 16 funded projects support centers which provide materials, expertise, teacher and community - leader training and other services for schools, Riles said.

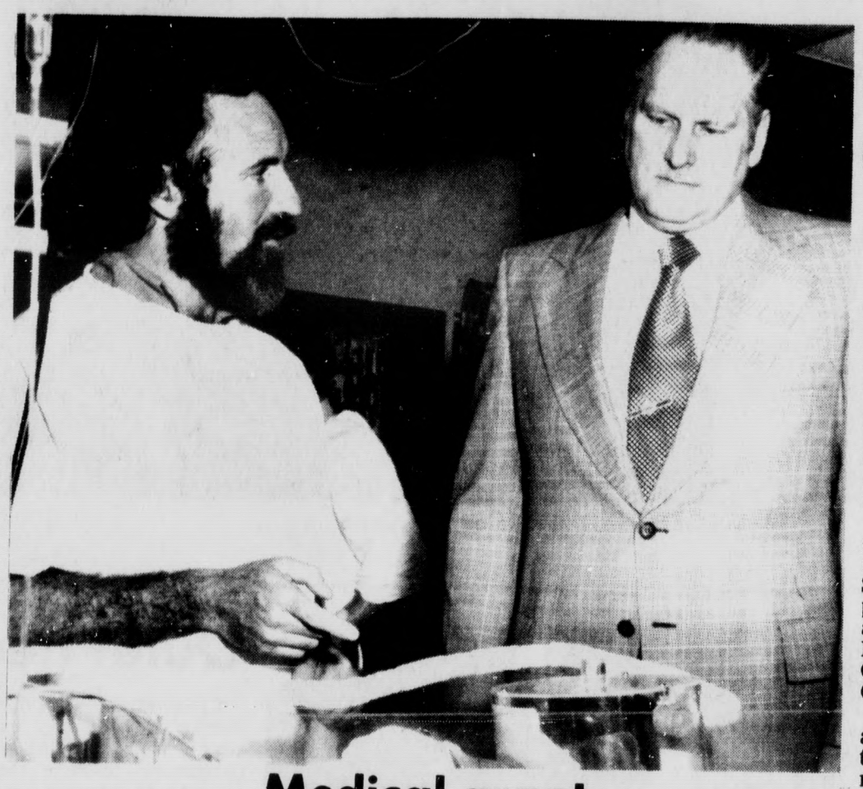
A center in Los Angeles, for example, will provide environmental education services for Los Angeles' Unified School District, as well as other areas of Los Angeles County. It also provides for schools in Ventura County.

A regional project based in the Merced County Office of Education, now in its second year of state funding, will serve educational agencies in the San Joaquin Valley.

Similar projects are scheduled for San Francisco, San Jose, Berkeley, and Oakland, Riles said.

A project in Palo Alto will provide field trips, teacher workshops and classroom presentations for schools in the area. Parent volunteers will be trained to work with the schools and will contribute their time to these activities.

"Learning to conserve natural resources and protect the quality of our environment is an essential educational objective," Riles said. "The quality of life these youngsters will have in the future is very much dependent upon the environmental ethic they are developing today."



Medical grant

March of Dimes chapters of Alameda and Contra Costa counties have awarded a $9,000 grant to Children's Hospital Medical Center in Oakland for a community hospitals training nurse to assist in newborn care. Alameda County Undersheriff Glenn Dyer, local campaign chairman, visited Children's Intensive Care Nursery and was taken on tour by Barry Phillips, M.D., left, co-director of Newborn Services.

Workshop plan

Chabot wants funds for sloar studies

LIVERMORE — Chabot College - Valley Campus will take its place in the sun if the National Science Foundation accepts the college's formal grant proposal to support five Saturday morning workshops dealing with solar energy.

The college recently received strong encouragement from the National Science Foundation to prepare the grant proposal, according to Dr. Barbara Mertes. She is Dean of Chabot College - Valley Campus.

Technical backup and assistance will be donated to this project by the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

The project design includes five one-day workshops. The first day's program will include a nationally known keynote speaker. He or she will set the tone and style of the program.

Following this address, the audience will be divided into four specific classes: (1) architects, builders and contracters.

(2). Municipal officers, community officials and local and state elected officials.

(3) Members from lending or funding agencies.

(4). Homeowners.

Each workshop will be chaired by a knowledgeable science expert who will stimulate audience input and feedback from the participants.

Joining the group leaders will be an evaluator - recorder who will observe and record the program.

The primary purpose of the project will be to gather information pertinent to all aspects related to solar energy.

This would include technology, public policy, existing barriers, and the most feasible ways to utilize this information. Educating the public about solar energy will be included in the overall plan.

A workable model will be developed to implement the program.

The proposal states, "the cooperative efforts between Chabot College - Valley Campus and Lawrence Livermore Laboratory will assure the local public that educational inquiry and scientific research and technology are cognizant of public policy issues."

Trustees get glimpse of plans

DUBLIN — A. Haluk Akol, architect for the conversion of Frederiksen School to seventh - eighth grade use by September, reviewed tentative plans with Murray School District board members last night.

Akol detailed proposals for location of shop and physical education facilities, as well as some classrooms.

Acting assistant superintendent Wally Moreskine said that the plans would be reviewed again with seventh and eighth grade teachers.

Akol recommended against expanding the multi-use room. He also said that one or two relocatables could be used for shop classes.

Pete Snyder, one of three holdovers, was elected president of the board to succeed Dr. Ted Woy, who choose not to seek another four-year-term.

Linda Jeffery was chosen clerk of the board, a position formerly held by Snyder. Mrs. Jeffery initially won election a year ago in a special election.

Also taking the oath of office was Donald C. Biddle, the top voter getter in the March school board election.

The board also received recommendations for superintendent selection criteria and the Murray Teachers Association contract proposal for 1977-78.

A school - community committee is working with consultant Donald Leu to seek out applicants for the position vacated by Dr. Donald Williams

Evaluating and recommendating of finalists to the board will occur in the latter part of May.

Action was taken to accept the bids of Ace Alarm Co., at $3,971.80, and Automatic Alarm Co., at $4,323.50, for alarm systems at five schools.

Board members convene in the library at 8 o'clock.

Wednesday night, trustees of the Pleasanton Joint School District will hold a regular board session at district offices in Pleasanton starting at 7:30.

One of 10 can't handle basics

Among the studies used in preparing the latest profile were NAEP tests, conducted for the Right to Read program of the U.S. Office of Education, in 1971, 1974 and 1975. The tests involved over 4,200 students across the country who were asked to answer 86 questions. In order to be considered functionally literate, they had to give the right answers to at least 64 questions.

By this standard, about 13 per cent of all the 17-year-olds were functionally illiterate. Over 21 per cent of students from disadvantaged urban areas were functionally illiterate, as were 42 per cent of black students and 20 per cent of the students from the Southeast.

The study showed that 17- year-olds gained slightly in basic reading skills from 1971 to 1975, but virtually all the change occured in the first three years. Roy H. Forbes, director of NAEP, said there was no significant change in overall functional reading ability from 1974 to 1975, although "some groups taken individually did improve or decline on certain types of questions."

From 1971 to 1975, the number of 17-year-olds able to read such basic things as street signs, store coupons and telephone directories increased by two percentage points. There was a gain of five percentage points among blacks and two percentage points among whites. Correct responses among males increased by three percentage points; among females, the increase was only 1.5 percentage points.

Forbes said the improvement was encouraging, but noted that the questions asked in the study "represent relatively simple reading tasks." He added: "At least one out of 10 of those students nearing the end of high school is still not able to do basic, everyday reading tasks."

Gilbert B. Schiffman, director of the Right to Read program, said: "The gap in functional reading performance is definitely closing. Particularly encouraging is the rapid improvement among those groups of students who traditionally have had reading problems. Nevertheless, a great deal remains to be done before we can claim to have erradicated illiteracy."

Other NAEP studies have found that 17-year-olds also have problems with writing, particularly if they are not specifically told what to do. They have trouble, for example, answering a job advertisement. In sample letters, most of them stated the job they were applying for and gave their qualifications in general terms, but only about one-third listed a phone number or return address to which a prospective employer could respond.

Comparisons of essays written by 17-year-olds in 1969 and 1974 showed a decrease in the proportion of coherent sentences and in the size of the students' vocabulary. The average word length in the essays in 1974 was four letters.

School nutrition programs improve awareness, diet

Several California school districts are going beyond teaching the four basic food groups and are implementing nutrition education programs which feature more in-depth and ongoing instruction.

"Now the focus is on improving the students' attitudes and food habits, to motivate them to make good decisions," says Violet Roefs, coordinator of nutrition education for the state department of education's health programs section, office of curriculum services.

California's nutrition program, which makes $.5 million available each year to school districts and child development centers on a project - approval basis, focuses on teaching nutrition to school staffs, food service personnel and parents in order to reach the school children.

"With these funds, they can employ for the first time a nutrition education specialist, along with a part time clerical and back up staff," Roefs points out.

Nutrition education specialists establish the type of curriculum best suited for their particular district and develop learning material to satisfy the minimum requirements laid down by the department of education.

The School Facilities Act of 1975 requires the state department of education to set down the basic elements of nutrition education and develop minimum proficiency levels.

"The nutrition education specialist can use her time to better advantage by teaching teachers," says Roefs, explaining that teachers can then help in implementing the program by integrating nutrition into various discipline including science and math.

During nutrition lessons, Sue Kidd, nutrition education specialist for San Ramon Valley Unified Schoolt District brings a raw cauliflower and broccoli "We try to take snack ideas into the classroom, because children can greatly influence their parents to buy these foods as snacks," she says, noting they hope to see such foods appearing in student bag lunches.

To bring nutritional information into the home, Kidd places crossword puzzles utilizing nutrition words, healthy snack ideas and other food facts on the back side of the monthly school lunch menus.

Several specialists have initiated sessions for parents on topics tied to current news themes, such as food additives, labeling and weight control.

Teachers, food service directors, administrators and parents have spurred district officials to submit proposals for program funding to the state education department.

Last year, 115 projects requesting $3.5 million funds were submitted. Since the program has only a limited fund to draw from, only 18 school district projects could be funded. The maximum allotment is $40,000 and the average district funding level is $26,000.

Participating school districts provide 50 per cent of the inservice training needed before a program is implemented in the classroom.

Many districts begin with a pilot program focusing on one school within the district, with the intent of disseminating the program to the remaining schools.

Roefs reports that a survey made on a federally - funded USDA project implemented in California (prior to the state's current program), found an 18 per cent gain in the amount of school lunch eaten by students who were taught under an in-depth nutrition program.

In a written test, this target group scored 47 per cent better in nutrition knowledge when compared to students who did not receive special nutrition instruction.

Perhaps these programs will give school children more food alternatives and encourage them to grab an apple instead of junk foods to maintain good food habits.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm worried about my younger sister because she's throwing herself at so many men and having sexual realtions with them. Her affairs are one - night stands. I believe if any one of her men asked her to marry him, she'd refuse. She's not a prostitute and would be horrified if anyone even called her a loose woman; yet that's clearly what she is. This wild promiscuity is not making her happy. She hysterically confessed to me that she'd had sex last night with a woman. She said she was high and a married woman had taken advantage of her sexually. I believe this, but I'm still worried about her. — V.W.

DEAR V.W.: I think you should be worried. From what you say, your sister needs help. The sexually - driven person is rarely happy, and your sister's addiction, like any other compulsion, isn't apt to get better without some positive action.

Promiscuous sex usually gives little joy or real fulfillment. It is usually a flight away from fear which the individual tries to lose or overcome by superficial closeness. The escape doesn't work but only produces a greater sense of loneliness and inadequacy.

Your sister's fear may be anxiety about her sexual identity. Often, a fear of homosexuality motivates frequent affairs with the opposite sex.

Since your sister recently experienced this homosexual incident, this may be a good time for you to suggest she seek professional help. It may frighten her into taking action.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband and I love Disneyland and have been there several times. We consider it an innocent and wonderful way to spend a day. My son, a second - year student, made fun at us (at least, we felt he did) and lectured us on how Disneyland could be broken down into primitive psychological urges. Some of them weren't too flattering to us. My husband missed part of this and he was furious when I repeated what I heard. Have you any idea what my son could have meant by the appeal of the "aggression and violence?" — T.A.

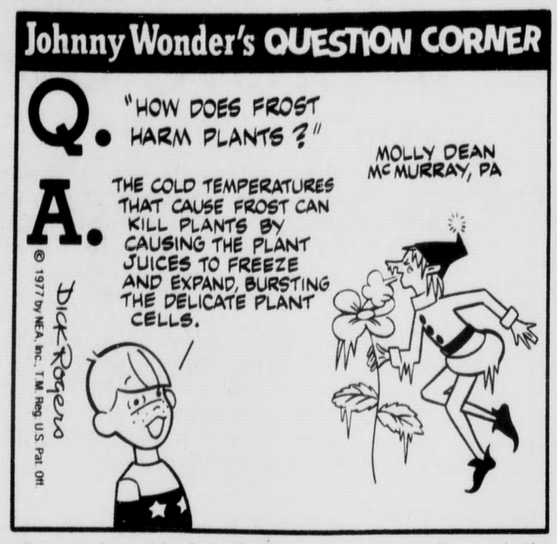
DEAR T.A.: I'm not sure, but he may have read or heard of a report by Dr. Michael Brody who presented his views at a convention of the American Psychiatric Association. He talked about certain obsessive themes in the hard - working little pig who dilligently builds his house of bricks putting his brothers to shame, and of the dwarfs who are always singing what he calls "an obsessive credo, 'Whistle While You Work.'"

Dr. Brody also interprets many of the rides where fear is followed by immediate relief as a "mastery of castration." He explains it this way: "This ability to frighten and then give relief is demonstrated beautifully in the Haunted House ride. Semi - scary voices and effects cause temporary fear. But the fears and the ride are controlled, for we know that like a horror movie or TV mystery, our nightmare will soon end."

He also emphasizes that the element of passivity is promoted because the person becomes a receptacle of experience without being asked to contribute.

Since you enjoyed Disneyland, don't be too troubled by your son's comments. He may only have been trying to impress you.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER



Q. "HOW DOES FROST HARM PLANTS?"
MOLLY DEAN
McMURRAY, PA
A. THE COLD TEMPERATURES THAT CAUSE FROST CAN KILL PLANTS BY CAUSING THE PLANT JUICES TO FREEZE AND EXPAND, BURSTING THE DELICATE PLANT CELLS.
© 1977 by NEA, Inc. T.M. Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.
Dick Rogers

Frost is formed when the temperature falls to below freezing and the moisture in the air condenses and collects on windowpanes, plants and other objects as tiny crystals of ice.

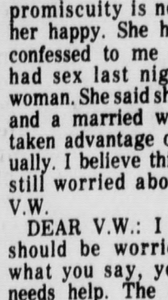
Frost can be a serious danger for the farmer by killing plants or ripening fruit.

Actually, it is not the frost itself that kills the plant. The plant dies because the freezing temperatures that cause frost also cause the water inside the plant to freeze and expand, bursting the delicate plant cells and destroying the plant.

When fruitgrowers know that a killing frost is expected, they can help save their crops by lighting the oil-burning heaters in the orchards to make the air around the trees warmer.

Another way is by mixing the air with huge fans to prevent the cold air from settling down.

Many home gardeners cover their plants with a light cover to protect them on cold nights.



Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband is 70 and I am 68 years old. Your advice is to use skim milk, a quart a day. Each of us uses about three cups, some of it buttermilk, most two per cent butterfat, partially skimmed milk.

My husband doesn't like completely skimmed milk. Do you think we get too much fat from the low fat milk? Is the skim milk powder all right?

Older friends tell us they buy garlic pills and take one very day. They say they keep the arteries clean. Before we start this I would like to hear your opinion.

DEAR READER — In the interests of avoiding an excess intake of fat and particularly saturated fat it is wise to limit the amount of dairy fat in your diet. That is the only good reason to use skim milk as opposed to whole milk. The low-fat, two per cent fat milk is half way in between the two products. About a third of its calories are from fat as opposed to half in whole milk.

If you limit the fats in the rest of your diet that will not be too much of a burden on your fat intake budget. Buttermilk is a good choice for part of your milk intake. The non-fat dry milk powder is fine and is particularly useful in cooking.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-2. Milk Products: Good and Bad, to give you a table of the values for various milk products and information on milk. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Garlic won't help you unless it cuts down on your socializing and the inevitable eating accompanying any social gathering of our society. It is one of those useless health food fads that do nothing for you except lighten your pocketbook.

The idea that garlic helps is as old as Diosorides who first claimed it would clean out the arteries. The Egyptians fed it to their laborers to keep them strong while building the pyramids. One enthusiast advised everyone to put a piece of garlic in the rectum every night before retiring. It is all nonsense. Garlic will not lower blood pressure, clean out your arteries, your digestive system or give you strength. All it cleans out is your pocketbook.

You'll need to stay on a good balanced diet that is moderately restricted in fats, particularly saturated fats and cholesterol. Sensible living, not fads, is the real route to health and longevity.

Opening lead — J ♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South won the spade lead with the king and quickly counted nine sure tricks made up of three spades, four diamonds and the other two aces. He didn't stop to see exactly how to be sure of these nine and simply led out the ace and jack of diamonds.

West took his king and shifted to the jack of hearts. Trouble had reared its ugly head. South held off with dummy's ace, but the suit was continued and dummy had to win the third lead.

South's nine tricks had been reduced to eight since there was no way to score three spades and four diamonds, but South did give it the old college try. He cashed his queens of diamonds and spades and led a club toward dummy's queen. Unfortunately for South, East held the king and the defense actually made six tricks.

A little early thought would have saved South's contract. All he had to do was to cash his queen of spades before leading the second diamond. The defense would still be able to shift to hearts but South would be able to discard his queen of diamonds on the ace of spades and unblock the suit.

Ask the Jacobys

A Hawaii reader wants to know if a husband and wife ever won the Vanderbilt Cup.

The answer is a decided "Yes." In 1930 the team of Ely and Josephine Culbertson, Ted Lightner and Waldemar von Zedtwitz won. An interesting feature is that Ely and Jo did not play as partners on that team.

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

Beauty blossoms at magical studio

Pleasanton's first professional cosmetic studio is working its magic on local countenance and confidence at the expert hand of Virginia Nelson of "Reina's."

Virginia witnessed so many successful mid-life career changes as a personnel administrator that she decided to try it herself. Her life-long interest in fashion and good looks blossomed into a business of her own featuring the line of cosmetics developed by her favorite cosmetician. Virginia was a faithful client of Hilda Coina of Oakland for ten years, and has placed that faith in the new "Casa de Coina" line of cosmetics and skin care products which are used and sold at "Reina's."

Virginia vividly recalls her first experience with a professional facial and personalized make-up treatment. "I felt fantastic, as if I were floating on air!" She now witnesses that same physical AND mental transformation in her own clients who may "indulge" in regular facials at the studio, or take the products with them for home treatment.

The "personal touch" is the cornerstone of Virginia's business approach, and she intends to meet the needs of women who are looking for guidance on how they can look their best. A first session at "Reina's" may consist of an interview in which the client's whole lifestyle is taken into account. A careful examination of the skin under Virginia's lighted magnifying glass reveals skin type and cleansing needs.

Virginia believes in beauty from the bottom up — "There's no way to hide neglect" — so naturally balanced meals, plenty of sleep and exercise take their place among her recommendations. However, Virginia can also dispel many myths about skin care including the pH bugaboo. A balanced skin cleanser is far superior to soap, which robs skin of moisture AND disrupts its natural pH, she explains.

Far fewer women actually have dry skin, she says, and proper cleansing and protection will help aggravated skin return to normal. However, an overdose of moisturizer is simply wasteful if one doesn't know how much to apply. Virginia's most expensive cream, containing cholestrol and vitamins, can be used very sparingly.

Other more exotic products available at the studio include a throat cream made of placenta for the "over-30" crowd, an eye oil made of eight Oriental ingredients, and an avocado night cream.

In the application of cosmetics, Virginia respects the individual's taste or personality, but warns that many women still apply make-up in a fashion that was popular many years ago. For example, eyelash curlers are OUT, as are excesses of eyeliner and eyebrow pencil. Blusher should be applied at the temple, NOT like two doll-like spots on the cheeks.

Virginia will professional make-up one half of a client's face, and let the client practice on the other half the first time around.

"Reina's" offers custom blends of make-up bases, as well as eye shadows, lipsticks, blushers and the proper application brushes. "Reina's" specializes in eyebrow shaping, and the studio also offers the new sculptured nails manicure.

It's also become more acceptable for men to be seen in the salon, and Virginia has already picked up several male clients as interested in healthy skin as their female counterparts.

IT'S STILL POSSIBLE TO BE HUMAN

What are the qualities that make us human? Is it the softness we feel for others, the understanding we have for that human uniqueness, that separates us from computers?

A few of us have fashioned ourselves after machines. This creates much unhappiness in individuals, and in society at large, which suffers the consequences of the inhuman bureaucracy, the uncaring "Catch 22" we all run up against.

To beat down all feeling, to render oneself devoid of those humanizing qualities such as compassion and sympathy and love, to achieve the sterile objectivity of pure logic, is to create a hell.

The thing that makes us all work is our human feeling. Without it, life has no meaning. But those who are more prone to so-called logic often think those who are fanciful in their interpretation of life are off their gourd, while those who dream their way through life weaving a fabric of dreams out of everyday circumstance, often think those who are all business, are boring, cold and uncaring. And they are probably right.

Red Skelton said he had never seen an ugly person, that there was something divine in each and every individual. These are the thoughts of a loving and humane individual who has brightened the lives of many with his zany and imaginative humor. He is humble in spite of his talents as actor, composer and painter. He is thoroughly human. As a clown, he interprets humanness for us, and helps us to know ourselves.

Paul Williams sang some of his songs on Command Performance on television the other night. Not only are his songs just the loveliest songs one could hear, in words and music, but his voice, with its depth of feeling, its unplastic, unpretensious, unpredictable qualities, its imperfections, fulfilled my idea of beauty and of humanity.

The roughness of Paul Williams' voice is appropriate for his songs, so full of human emotions. Our emotions are not glossy, smooth and hard. Most of them are soft and pliable, some are shaggy and wrinkled and rough.

It's through these properties that Paul Williams reveals to us our own humanness, both in the meaning of his songs, and in his rumply vocal delivery.

The other day I saw a man walking down the street with his lunch pail, just getting home from work, walking fast, taking big steps, a well-built, virile-looking man. His car pool had let him off at the corner, and he had about a block to walk until he entered his subdivision. He suddenly broke his stride, reached up and grabbed a limb of a tree covered with pink blossoms that was hanging over the wall, brought it down to his nose, took a deep breath of its fragrance, released it, and walked on with giant steps.

It touched me to see this unself-conscious, zesty act of enjoyment. It made me think of the beautiful, gentle and sensitive feelings possible to us humans, and the fact that much of those feelings are battered out of us by life and society. Thank God there are still those willing and able to remind us just what it is to be human.

JAPANESE COLLECTION

TOKYO (AP) — A collection of Japanese No robes and masks rarely displayed even in museums will be shown for the first time in the United States from April to September 1977. The 145 objects will be displayed at the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C., Japan House Gallery, New York and the Kimbell Art Museum, Ft. Worth, Tex.

"The Tokugawa Collection: No Robes and Masks" is part of the collection of the Tokugawa Museum, opened in 1935 by the 19th lord of Owari. Yochichika Tokugawa, a direct descendant of the first shogun, Ieyasu Tokugawa. The museum houses the largest private collection of Japanese art in the world.

Cerebral palsy gets fundraiser

A new auxiliary of the Cerebral Palsy Center for the Bay Area has been formed, with Dolores Dewsnup of Concord as president. The group's efforts will be concentrated principally in Contra Costa County, with membership open to persons who wish to work on fund raising and support activities on behalf of the Center.

In the spirit of three other Center auxiliaries, Aquarius, Capella and Polaris, the new auxiliary chose the star Mercury as their namesake.

"Mercury is known as the star that's quick, productive and always moving," says Ms. Dewsnup. "Our goal will follow suit as we also strive to be productive, growing and accomplishing all the time."

The new auxiliary is planning a "Musicale Caprice," wine tasting event featuring music and art. A performance of the Berkeley Mandolin Ensemble will highlight the June 12 event, scheduled for 3 to 5 p.m. at the auxiliary's headquarters.

For information on affiliating with Mercury auxiliary, contact the Cerebral Palsy Center, 4500 Lincoln Ave., Oakland at 531-3323.

Each auxiliary plans and conducts two fund raising events each year. Members also contribute time and energy in such activities as making items for the Christmas Bazaar and stuffing envelopes. The auxiliaries also operate a thrift shop at 372 40th Street in Oakland.

With less water in our reservoirs because of the drought, PG&E's hydroelectric generating capacity is down to less than half of normal. To make up the difference, we have to buy and burn more high-priced oil. Which means that the cost of electricity will be the highest ever. To make matters worse, what we're paying for natural gas, and therefore have to charge you, is already the highest ever.

What you should do about it is clear. Use less. Not only to conserve power, but to keep your bills as low as possible. The examples on this page are based on today's rates. If those rates go up still further, the need to save will be still greater. If there were ever a time, and good reasons, to cut down on your use of energy, that time is now.

George still has a future

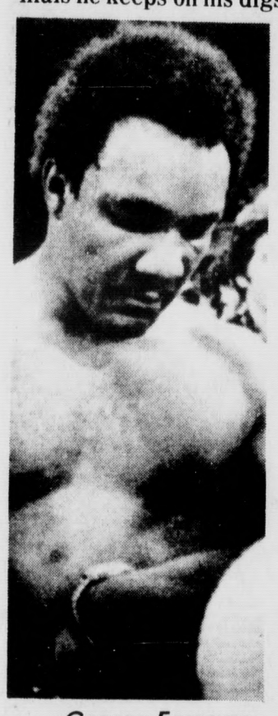
Just ask

THE TIPOFF:

The most unheralded figure in sports is pert (5 feet 3) Judy Torluemke Rankin, who has had a couple of fantastic campaigns in women's golf and has a figure to match her figures — more than $150,000 in tournament earnings last year. Judy's been around for a decade but started her drive to the top when she switched to a standup putting style.

Q. What do you think George Foreman's future is now in boxing? — D.M., Hayward, Calif.

His future is to stay away from the cuties — like Ali and Jimmy Young — who can exploit his lack of mobility by wearing him down. George isn't the smartest guy in the ring, but he can still take out anybody else who's around through his sheer power. And he'll keep on fighting because it's a surer way of making money than laying with the wild animals he keeps on his digs outside Marshall, Tex.



George Foreman

Q. Is it true that the Los Angeles Lakers have their front court problems solved next season with the addition of Sidney Wicks and Jamaal Wilkes, joining another UCLA grad, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar? — G.G., Fountain Valley, Calif.

There has been some speculation along that line because Wicks is playing out his contract with the Boston Celtics, and Wilkes, who has professed a desire to live in his native southern California (and got unhappy because Gul Williams came in as a rookie last year for more dough), is also unsigned by the Golden State Warriors. I'm not sure it'll happen that way. Besides, the Lakers haven't been doing badly this season with what they've got.

Q. Can you tell where I could write or get in touch with Fran Tarkenton for a poster? — B.J., Ashaway, R.I.

I don't think Fran goes around passing out posters. I don't even know that there is one of him. Players frequently hand out autographed photographs. The normal channel for that would be to write Fran care of the Minnesota Vikings in Bloomington, Minn.

Q. How does Bump Wills, the rookie second baseman of the Texas Rangers, compare in size and speed with his father, the great Maury Wills of the Dodgers? — R.T., Kingsville, Tex.

Bump, whose real handle is Elliott Taylor Wills, is an inch shorter than his father, at 5-9. He is five pounds heavier than Maury's playing weight of 165. He's also slower, some of that due to a broken ankle suffered while at Arizona State. He does hit with more power — 26 homers last year at Sacramento, where the fences are friendly.

Q. In listing your candidates for the all - league team in the National Basketball Association, how could you leave out Elvin Hayes, who's having a super season for the Washington Bullets? — T.Y., Reidsville, N.C.

A legitimate question since the Big "E" is having what may be his best all around year in nine seasons in pro ball, with his best scoring output (24 points a game) in five campaigns and, above all, a more intelligent approach to offense. For instance, Elvin has learned how to maneuver against a defender while facing the basket.

Q. Do you really think Joe Namath can help the Los Angeles Rams if they get him? From what I saw last year, he'd have trouble holding on to his starting job with the New York Jets. — P.A., Elizabeth, N.J.

It's all a matter of style. Namath was and would be zero and maybe even a minus for the lowly Jets, who couldn't give him the protection his gimpy legs need and couldn't provide the running game to balance his passing. That's the primary reason Joe even refuses to consider playing for them again. With the Rams, however, he's on a solid team that could use his passing threat, his experience at deciphering defenses and, yes, his dedication to playing. My only hesitation on Joe is that in recent years, through carelessness, he has gotten into bad passing habits. I think Chuck Knox, a meticulous coach, would straighten him out. And I think he is what the talent loaded Rams need to make it to the Super Bowl.

Parting shot:

In some circles, Mario Andretti is considered too old at 37 to concentrate all his energies on Formula I racing, where young bucks like James Hunt are riding high. But I like Mario's retort. It's a man's condition, not his age, that's the criterion — "it's like making love."

Got a tough question about sports and the people who play them. All you have to do is ask Murray Olderman. Write him in care of the Times, P.O. Box, 607 Pleasanton, California, 94566. The most interesting questions will be answered in this column. Olderman regrets he cannot write personal responses to all the questions.

AL wrap-up

Walks give A's victory

OAKLAND — The California Angels walked two batters on purpose to get at rookie Mitchell Page in the bottom of the ninth inning last night, only to have Nolan Ryan quite unintentially pass Page to "drive" in the winning run of a 3-2 Oakland A's victory.

Pablo Torrealba got the victory for the A's in relief of starter Mike Norris, who lasted eight innings of fine control pitching. Despite the attraction of a half-price family night only 12,337 fans were on hand for the thriller.

The A's again allowed their opponent to come up with a couple of quick runs in the top of the first.

With one out, Bobby Grich cracked a high bounder to third baseman Wayne Gross that stayed in the air long enough to be a hit. With Bobby Bonds at bat, Norris tried to pick Brich off but first baseman Dick Allen wasn't expecting it and the ball got lose for a two-base error.

Bonds eventually walked and ex-A's designated hitter Don Baylor sliced a double up the right center field alley to score Grich. Another former Oakland player , Joe Rudi, then gave rookie Tony Armas a chance to show off his arm with a sacrifice fly to deep right on which Bonds barley slid home ahead of the tag after Manny Sanguillen mishandled the throw.

The A's broke up Ryans' bid for a record fifth no-hitter and his shutout in the fourth. Allen grounded a single pass shortstop and Sanguillen lined Ryan's pitch to deep center. Converted first baseman Bruce Bochte started in on the ball only to have it sail over his head for a run-scoring double.

In the sixth, the A's tied it, thanks to a gutsey play by rookie left fielder Mitchell Page. Page smashed a Ryan fastball off the base of the left field fence and took advantage of the Angels' shappy relay play to take third with ahook slid and one-handed grab of the bag.

Allen's short pop single over second brought Page in at a trot.

Rangers 3, Indians 2 — Toby Harrah belted a 370-foot solo home run in the 10 th 10th inning to give the unbeaten Rangers a tight win over Cleveland in Arlington, Texas.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Texas club.

The Rangers tied the game in the bottom of the ninth When Bump Wills hit a sacrifice fly.

Andrian Devine set the Indians down in order in the 10th to gain his first win for the Rangers.

Royals 5, Yankees 4 — The Royals gained their fourth win against no losses in a 13th inning contest over the Yankees.

New York is now 1-3 for the year.

Blue Jays 5, Tigers 3 — Run - scoring singles by Pedro Garcia and Doug Ault keyed a four-run Toronto rally in the seventh inning that led the expansion club to its third victory in its first four games.

Steve Hargan, who came on in the seventh in relief of Jay starter Jesse Jefferson got credit for the victory. He blanked the Tigers over 2⅓ innings, allowing only a Jason Thompson single. John Hiller was the loser for Detroit.

Amador's Frank Mona carded a 40 against Foothill yesterday.

Score in doubt

AV, Foothill tie

Amador Valley and Foothill fought to a tentative 206-206 draw yesterday in East Bay Athletic League golf action.

The score was tied after the first five golfers completed their play but scores on the sixth men were not fully decided, thus a playoff may be necessary to determine the winner.

In other EBAL matches yesterday Granada edged California 233-236 and Livermore crushed Dublin 203-222 at Las Positas.

Greg McAvoy led Amador Valley with an excellent 37. However, Rich Giglow and Dan Juchau of Foothill each followed with fine 38s.

Frank Mona and Mark Ludwig of Amador Valley each had 40s. John Raspanti of Foothill had a 42.

The AV-Foothill match was critical because each team only had one defeat entering the match. The Dons were 4-1 and and Foothill 3-1. League leading Monte Vista had a perfect 5-0 record.

Wes Morgan fired a great 34 to spark Livermore to its easy win over the Gaels. That score is probably the best in EBAL action this season. Jeff Howard added a 38.

Livermore is now 3-3 amd Dublin is winless in six tries.

Despite a 43 by Ron Longoria California lost a narrow one to Granada.

Granada's balance proved to be the key. Jeff Hoffman led the Matadors with a 44 and Larry Lipera added a 45 on the rough San Ramon course.

Leo Hoffman of Granada and Craig Mattoch of California each carded 47s. Joe Lennier was the last Granada player with a 49. Eric Hanson had a 51 for the Grizzlies.

Granada is now 2-4 in EBAL play and Dublin 1-5.

Valley teams drop in poll

ANTIOCH — Two valley teams fell from grace in this week's East Bay Prep Writers baseball poll, it was announced this morning.

Amador Valley slumped into the honorable mention ranks after an 11-5 pasting at the hands of San Ramon in the consolation title game of last week's Verl Thornock tournament in San Lorenzo after being ranked 14th last time the poll came out.

California, meanwhile, once a lofty second, then a fixture in 12th, also tumbled into the honorable mention group. The Grizzlies sin was a 2-2 loss to Bishop O'Dowd in their lone action of the week.

The two Danville schools, however, were on the rise.

East Bay Athletic League leader Monte Vista knocked off top-ranked Clayton Valley in the championship game of the Diablo Valley tourney and moved up three notches to third, just 6 points (or one 10th place vote) of first.

SF, Padres tangle

LOS ANGELES — Right fielder Reggie Smith collected three hits off Los Angeles' nemesis, San Francisco righthander Ed Halicki. But he had no explanation for Halicki's mastery over the Dodgers.

"It's funny how a guy can handle one club like he has handled us," said Smith. "He has trouble beating other clubs, but it seems all he has to do against us is throw the rosin bag up there and we can't hit it."

Halicki defeated the Dodgers for the fifth straight time Sunday, 8-4, pitching San Francisco to its first victory of 1977.

The Giants took yesterday off and begin a three-game series against the Padres in San Diego tonight, who are coming off two successive victories over Cincinnati.

Halicki, like Smith, has no ready explanation for the way he has handled the Dodgers. He is 6-1 against the Dodgers in his career, including three shutouts last year when he was only 12-14 overall.

"I like pitching in Dodger Stadium," he said. "I like the mound, I like the atmosphere and best of all I like beating the Dodgers. I fell like I'm king of the hill."

For rookie San Francisco manager Joe Altobeli, it marked his first major league victory. "I'm happy to get ... the monkey off my back," he said after suffering two losses before his first victory.

Reliever Randy Moffitt was called upon in the ninth inning to bail out Halicki, who gave up singles to Bill Russell and Smith to open the inning. The Dodgers' bullpen, on the other hand, enjoyed far less success.

After Burt Hooton was tagged for three runs in four innings, Los Angeles manager Tom Lasorda went to his bullpen and no one came away unscatched. Al Downing, Stan Wall, Mike Garman and Elias Sosa all gave up rounds to upset the Dodgers' comeback bids.

Darrell Evans' two-run homer in the seventh off Wall proved to be decisive.

The Giants pounded out 13 hits, headed by Evans' home run and two singles, good for three runs batted in. Larry Herndon also homered for San Francisco in the ninth inning off Sosa.

Cubs 6, Phillies 2 — Ex-Giant Bobby Murcer powered a home run to spark Chicago past the Phillies in the City of Brotherly Love.

Bill Benhaum fired a seven - hitter for the winners. He struck out four batters and walked only one.

Jim Morales added a two-run double for the Cubs.

Back-up quarterback Mike Rae of the Raiders was the blind boogie low net winner, with a 58. Jim Saunders was second with 65, followed by Frank Gonzaga with a 66.

Associate Pro Tom Duncan, a former Ygnacio Valley High and University of Nevada-Reno star athlete, captured low gross for the professional division with a 71, beating out Bob Mejias who had a 76.

The best ball foursome went to the team of Dan Garcia, Pete Zernik, Kirk Ward, and Bill Martin with a 52.

Rae lead the second place team of Bob Scuitto, Claud Grillo, Tony Fellner and Alex Landridge, that posted a 55. In third place with a 56 were Bill Plumbeck, Gary Hill, Marshal Stuart and Marv Hubbard.

Long drives for the Tournament went to former Raider and Forty-Niner Clem Daniels, who unloaded a 319-yard shot off the tee.

Proceeds of the tournament went to the Contra Costa Diabetic Association.

Sports Fillers

The Philadelphia Phillies have a distinction they can do without. They hold the World Series record for consecutive losses by one run. . .the last four in 1915 and the first three in 1950.

Casey Stengel was the manager in more World Series games than any other pilot in baseball history. Casey was at the helm in 63 contests.

Casey Stengel was the winningest manager in World Series history. He won 37 as pilot of the New York Yankees.

The great John McGraw of the New York Giants had the unhappy distinction of losing more World Series games than any other manager, a total of 28.

Eddie Arcaro is the only jockey to ride two Triple Crown winners. Arcaro scored with Whirlaway in 1941 and Citation in 1948.

Correlation was favored for all three Triple Crown events in 1954 and lost them all.

Meet Pistons

Warriors hope to break jinx

OAKLAND — The Golden State Warriors may be riding a three-game win streak into the Oakland Coliseum tonight for their 8 p.m. National Basketball Association play-off opener, but chances are they're more concerned with a streak of another sort.

The Warriors have lost their last three games with the Detroit Pistons, who provide the opposition for Golden State in the three - game preliminary series.

"We have to play our game to beat Detroit," said Warrior coach Al Attles after Saturday's 118-102 regular - season curtain closing win over Kansas City. "We've got to take up the challenge, we're not going to come up with a special play to go to."

But Attles, who displayed a couple of new wrinkls while short-handed in last week's trio of surprisingly easy wins over Los Angeles, the hapless Nets and Kansas City, admitted, "You've got to try and control the tempo of the ballgame against the Pistons."

Recalling the Warriors last loss in Cobo Arena, Attles said, "They didn't have (all-star center Bob) Lanier, we got lax and they took over the momentum."

Last time the teams met, in Oakland, Lanier was in the line-up and Detroit's quasi-legal trap defense forced the Warriors to the sides, making them cross the ball into the middle instead of whipping it up the middle lane unimpeded.

Lanier, befuddled by the dissention that has had his team mates at each other's throats — and that of coach Herb Brown — all season, has missed all but one Piston game since early March with a broken hand. Yet, rest assured, he's back.

The 6-11 strong man played in Detroit's 103-96 win over Cleveland Saturday night and scored 30 points. He skipped Sunday's game with the Knicks only because the Warriors had rendered the contest meaningless by clinching the home-court advantage in tonight's series opener Saturday night.

Saturday, Attles unveiled a two-center, one-guard offense that he says may come in handy during the playoffs.

The move puts seven-foot rookie Robert Parish at forward, from whence he tallied 30 points Saturday.

"I've been thinking about using two centers against Detroit," Attles said, belying his earlier remarks. "We could go down the line with it if Clifford Ray had four or five fouls on him."

In the set-up, one player — presumably Ray — is responsible for rebounding and dishing the ball out, while the other takes on more of a scoring load.

Parish, who would probably take 6-8 George Trapp or 6-8 Howard Porter under the alignment, thinks the adjustment factor is more important on defense.

"At forward, you only play one man," he said after doing a remarkable job on Kansas City's Richard Washington, "At center you've got to play everyone who comes through the middle. I'm not used to moving around so much on defense."

A final note: Remember all that scrambling for the home court advantage and supposedly weaker play-off foes during the final days of the regular season? It didn't mean that much.

"The home court's no big deal," says Attles, "You only get two games."

Says guard Phil Smith, "To tell you the truth, I didn't care if we got Detroit or Chicago, it didn't matter."

Bob Lanier (16) shows his massive back to Sonny Parker in last Detroit-GS tilt.

Wilkes will play

OAKLAND — Jamaal Wilkes, the Golden State Warriors' forward who missed his team's last two regular season games, attended practice Monday and will play in Tuesday night's National Basketball Association play-off opener against the Detroit Pistons.

The 6 - foot - 6 Wilkes was absent the two games to be with his wife, Joy, who gave birth to a girl last Tuesday. The infant, born with a heart murmer, was listed in stable condition at an Oakland hospital Monday.

Even without Wilkes, the Warriors won their last two games to clinch the home court advantage in the best - of - three series with the Pistons. Their final record of 46-36, good for third in the Pacific Division, was two games better than Detroit's 44-38 which left the Pistons second in the Midwest.

Pistons Coach Herb Brown gave 6-11 center Bob Lanier a day off in Sunday's season finale since the team had no chance of matching Golden State's record. The big man had been out of action for some time with a broken hand before returning last week with two strong performances.

Detroit, of course, is without Marvin Barnes, one of its top front court players. Barnes has a broken hand, too, but even before the injury he had said he would pass up the playoffs and start serving a jail sentence which awaited him.

The Pistons, who won three of their four games against Golden State in the regular season, often put 6-10 rookie Leon Douglas into the game with Lanier. Golden State may combat such heighth by sending 6-11 rookie Robert Parish in at a forward spot to complement center Clifford Ray.

In the first round of last year's playoffs, the Warriors were defending NBA champions and struggled to victory over Detroit before being upset by Phoenix in the Western Conference finals.

"I'm afraid we went into the playoffs thinking that we were supposed to win," Coach Al Attles says.

the Thornock conso crown, was rewarded with a jump of three spaces also, into a tie for sixth place.

Today's EBAL action doesn't promise to rearrange the standings much as the Mustangs host seventh-place Livermore and the second-place, but undefeated Wolves, take on Granada in Livermore.

The latter is the most important game on tap as far as the early leaders go, with the Mats just a half game back of the Wolves and a pair of undefeated pitchers — Mitch Rascano of San Ramon and Bob Parness of Granada — likely to throw.

Chabot golfers breeze

A trio of Chabot players scored 75s on Castlewood's 18-hole course as the Gladiators rolled to an easy double - victory over Golden Gate Conference foe Laney and Valley Conference opponent Modesto yesterday.

Steve Gazzaneo, Tom Cole and Chris Cantalini (a former Dublin High School star) each carded a 75 for the course as Chabot dumped Laney 53-1 under NCAA rules and defeated Modesto easily under tournament rules.

Doug Cauthers of Modesto was the only other player at 75.

Ken Suzza of Chabot followed with a 76 and Bob Williams of Modesto had a 77.

Gil Flynn of the Gladiators scored a 78 and teammate Pat Chapman added a 79.

The highest Laney player was John Whiteford with an 90. Julious Harrison had a 98 and George Strogens and Ken Dove 102 and 127 respectively for the Eagles.

Chabot is now 12-1 in GGC action and 14-1 overall and hold a one-half match lead over San Mateo.

The Gladiators and Chabot will meet at Castlewood in two weeks with the conference championship probably hanging in the balance.

Cagers paved way

Kuhn approves Cuba baseball venture

NEW YORK — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has given his preliminary approval to an invitation from Cuban President Fidel Castro to send a major league all-star baseball team to Cuba, Kuhn's office said Monday.

Bob Wirz, director of information for the commissioner's office, said the invitation was relayed to Kuhn by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.Dak., who accompanied a South Dakota basketball team on a tour of Cuba last week.

"He (Kuhn) did talk to Sen. McGovern and told him that we're continuing our effort to send an all-star team to play in Cuba," said Wirz. "We could probably do so either after the World Series (in October) or next spring."

However, Wirz said it was too early to consider any such goodwill tour an accomplished fact.

"It would seem, with the events of the day, that it probably moved a step closer," he said, "but in our minds it would be premature to be saying the commissioner had accepted the invitation and to make it sound like the tour definitely will happen."

In Washington, McGovern said he had talked with Castro about a U.S. baseball team visiting Cuba as part of a continuing program of sports and cultural exchanges. He added Castro liked the idea.

McGovern noted he had discussed such a trip during a visit he made to Cuba two years ago and that Castro, an avid baseball fan, wanted the New York Yankees. But Kuhn turned down this request and insisted that an all-star team make the trip.

McGovern said he raised the suggestion anew last Saturday and "Mr. Castro, at my urging, has accepted the idea of an all-star team."

Wirz said, "Both parties seem to agree on what Cuba is inviting us to do and what kind of team the commissioner would like to send." He added that baseball must first make "certain the State Department concurs and that all other ramifications are worked out."

Wirz said there were no further discussions scheduled, at this time, with either the State Department or Cuban officials.

McGovern also said the Cubans were interested in other sports exchanges and plan to send their national basketball team to South Dakota next November if the State Department approves. He said he didn't see any difficulty in obtaining consent.

The Cuban team, which won two games from a combined squad of players from South Dakota and South Dakota State universities last week, would play return engagements in that state and also perhaps play exhibitions with another midwest college team and one in the west.

Anne and Jim Ryun preach Sunday evening at Dublin High

Ryun believes in Christ and athletics

Worshipping too long and too hard at the altar of the Perfect All-Weather Indoor - Outdoor Running Surface foiled his bid for an Olympic gold medal and rattled his personal life.

Yet, former world record - holding miler Jim Ryun believes a good Christian can be a champion athlete.

"That's a question that's come up several times since I quit ITA (the pro track tour)," Ryun said after he, and his wife Anne, had delivered a 35-minute testimony as part of the Valley Christian Center's Easter Rally at Dublin High School Sunday evening. "You can definitely combine the two — I'd still be running if I had listened to God."

After a film depicting Ryun's record dash of 3:51.1 in the 1967 AAU Outdoor Championships, the couple opened its portion of the service with a recitation of the Lord's Prayer.

Then, smiling, Anne, clad in a simple white frock and huge yellow clogs, queried the gathering of a few hundred, "Did you know that the man in that film is dead? He was a good man, anyone would have been proud to have him for a son.

"But he started at age 15 building an idol. Instead of worshipping God, he loved track and gave all his time and energy to track," she explained.

Jim, wearing a three-piece brown suit and a Pepsodent smile that equalled his wife's, admitted, "I didn't know what kind of trouble I was getting into until I read a book called They speak With Other Tounguesin 1971."

The book, Ryun says, taught him that God, as the Bible says, "is a jealous God," who can't accept the concept of a self-made man.

"It took almost a year for that to sink in," Ryun said. Worse yet, the Ryuns contend, was Jim's training schedule, which called for four to six miles of running in the morning, 10-15 miles in the afternoon, swimming and paddleball after that and, of course, precise sleeping and eating habits.

That daily routine, Anne pointed out, left no time for prayer. And Jim, a 29-year old father of four, added, "Dad can't spend too much time with the children; he's destroyed by all the running."

Jim recalls, "We went to church twice on Sunday, and were that much better for it, but to pray for something during the week! Wow, that was heavy stuff."

In 1972, the Ryuns, who now reside in Santa Barbara, made one of their periodic returns to Lawrence, Kansas where Jim had run for the University of Kansas — "I kept thinking if I went back to where I been successful, I could be successful again."

There, they ran into a couple who sparked their final headlong plunge into religion.

"They had not only talked Jesus, they had bought Jesus," Anne says. "They seemed to have a serenity and deep down joy, although they didn't have anything that would have made us happy.

"We liked where we were," she continued, "but in the privacy of our home, there was a void that needed to be filled and Jesus Christ did that."

His wife claimed that Jesus' love is a sacrificial, rather than convenient way of life, but Jim points to two important lessons he says he has learned.

"The first is that Jesus is not just for women and children, but for men, too. The second is that when you ask for something you get it," he explained.

Entering the 1972 Olympic 1500-meter heat races at Munich, Ryun prayed that God's will be done and that "if the Gold medal was His way of touching our lives that I might do my best."

As track fanatics will recall, an African runner spiked Ryun and he tumbled to the track, out of contention. Which wouldn't have been news to Anne, had she been as aware in her Christianity as she now claims to be.

"The night before the race, God gave me a dream. I saw Jim fall, I saw exactly where he was going to fall and when he was going to fall," she recalled. "I didn't know that Jesus spoke to us through our dreams, so I didn't tell anyone about it."

Ryun remembers that as he fell, he cracked his head on the infield curb and was temporarily stunned — a fact he now finds symbolic.

"It never occured to me that God would bump me on the head and say, 'Uh-uh, that's not my way,'" Ryun mused. "He allowed that to happen because my life with Him wasn't proper."

Finally, after a trying four-year period that included a fling with the now-defunct ITA, Jim says God called it quits as far as track went.

"When the time came, God took us to that bridge and guided us over it," Anne claimed.

With his competitive days behind him, Ryun still runs five or six miles per day, but wouldn't hazard a guess as to how fast he could turn the mile today.

"I'd probably be better in a long distance race."

Grand Slam possible

Watson enjoys Masters win

AUGUSTA, Ga. — There will be no Grand Slam for Jack Nicklaus this year.

For Tom Watson, maybe.

Not likely, but maybe.

"I feel that I'm still young, my game is young, my career is young. I'm still learning, improving," the pleasant redhead said in the wake of his two - stroke triumph over Nicklaus in the 41st Masters.

It left Watson "euphoric — on cloud nine."

And it left him the only man eligible for the Grand Slam, that unaccomplished one-year sweep of all the world's major championships. The Masters is the first, followed by the U.S. and British opens, and the PGA.

Only four men — Nicklaus, Gary Player, Ben Hogan and Gene Sarazen — have won them all in a career. The sweep of the four in one season is, at best, improbable. Many of golf's greatest performers have called it impossible.

Nicklaus says it's "possible, but not likely."

And it is that goal, that seeking for the unlikely, that keeps him active, title-hungry as ever. He admitted to a yearning for that Slam going into the 1977 season. It would cap his unmatched career — and quite possibly end it.

"I would have achieved my goals," he said, discussing the Grand Slam after his 1975 PGA triumph. "I would have nothing left to prove."

It is not possible, for him, this year. And the years are going by. He has not won one of the Big Four since that PGA at Akron, Ohio. He will be 38 when the Masters — the first of the four Grand Slam events — rolls around again.

"I feel that considering my schedule, considering my physical condition, with good health, I can continue to play as long as I want," said the man who has won a record 14 major professional championships.

He came close to No. 15. So very, very close.

But Watson, the man who was supposed to fold, folded not at all. Faced with a pounding challenge from the most feared of all the game's great players, the gritty Watson clenched his teeth, rammed in a decisive 18 - foot birdie putt on the 17th hole that, admittedly, shook the mighty Nicklaus, standing on the 18th tee.

"That sort of changed around in my mind what was going on," he said. "I hadn't planned on somebody making a birdie. My mind wasn't ready for it."

The happy roar that birdie jerked from the throats of the huge, sun - warmed gallery may have shaken him even more.

It was the sound of on - rushing youth.

In 14 tournaments on the pro tour this season, 11 have been won by men in their 20's. Watson is the unchallenged leader of the group.

He's intelligent, articulate and, proven in the Masters, courageous. He could be bordering on greatness. He's collected six official American titles, plus the old World Series of Golf. He won the British Open in 1975. He won in Japan.

This year he's won three times, could have won five, leads the season's money-winners with $175,000 and is by far the leading candidate for Player of the Year honors.

And he's just coming into his golfing prime.

He's had his troubles — in the past — bringing home the victories. He let a U.S. Open escape him at Medina in Chicago. He once blew one in Dallas. He had a lead through three rounds and lost in Hawaii. He let titles get away from him in his last two previous starts.

"That's entirely different," he said. "At that time, I didn't have a swing I could believe in, one that would stand up under pressure.

"Now I have one that is workable. It isn't perfect, but it's workable. It has a long way to go yet.

"But I'm still young.

"And I hope to be around a long, long time."

Karen had bad heart

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Karen Krantzcke, who collapsed after winning a tennis tournament, apparently died of an enlarged heart, Leon County Medical Examiner C. W. Ketchum said Monday.

"I think it's due to cardiac hypertrophy, enlargment of the heart," said Dr. Ketchum. "I don't know the cause of it."

Ketchum has performed an autopsy on Miss Krantzcke, a 30-year-old native of Rockdale, New South Wales, Australia, but he said it will take several days to pinpoint the cause of death.

The medical examiner said that this kind of heart enlargement is a rare condition, especially in professional athletes. He said cardiac hypertrophy is not a heart attack.

Miss Krantzcke collapsed and died Sunday as she returned from jogging after winning the doubles title in a $20,000 tournament at Forest Meadows Racquet Club here.

Dr. Bryan W. Robinson, a Tallahassee physician, saw her collapse at the entrance to the club. He was at her side in seconds. He said that she had no pulse when he examined her and that she apparently had died instantly.

Miss Krantzcke's body was taken to Culley Funeral Home. Owner Walter Culley said arrangements for the funeral would not be completed until Miss Krantzcke's sponsor, Clarence Mabry, flew in from Texas.

He said Miss Krantzcke has a brother, Tony, who lives in Sydney, Australia.

Miss Krantzcke has been dividing her time in recent years between Australia and New Braunfels, Texas, where she was an instructor at Jon Newcombe's tennis ranch, according to tournament officials.

Miss Krantzcke and her partner, Kym Ruddell of Melbourne, Australia, won the doubles title 6-2, 6-1 from Rayni Fox of Miami Beach and Helen Gourlay of Australia.

It was Miss Krantzcke's second professional tournament after sitting out a year with an arm injury. She won $1,000 for capturing the doubles and $1,400 for advancing to the singles semifinals, where she was eliminated by Mary Carillo, the tournament champion.

Miss Krantzcke was once the seventh-ranked women's tennis player in the world. She and Miss Gourlay advanced to the doubles finals at Wimbledon in 1974.

The illogical best of Ernie Kovacs tonight

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Eggs splat into a skillet in tempo to the thunder of "The 1812 Overture." A submarine periscope rises in a lady's bubblebath. A finger emerges from a phone and starts dialing.

Such is what Jack Lemmon calls the "unpredictable and illogical view of the world" his close pal, Ernie Kovacs, constantly displayed in TV comedy specials until he died in a car crash in 1962.

In most areas tonight, that surreal, satirical view is coming back in the first half - hour edition of public TV's "The Best of Ernie Kovacs," a 10 - week series made by Chicago station WTTW.

Don't miss it. Culled from kinescopes and videotapes of Kovacs' work in the mid-1950s until his death, it's a fine sample of why he was considered such a major influence in TV comedy.

Wish he still were with us. He loved the outlandish sight gag, didn't fear the use of silence and felt the home audience needed no canned laughter to know what was funny and what wasn't.

Nor was he afraid to insert a little traveling music — a recording of "Mack the Knife" sung in German by a gent sounding as if he were at the end of a rope — to fill time between sight gags.

Good satire of TV trends is rare these days. In which case you'll flip over Kovacs' salvo at television's penchant for copying a successful form and beating the poor thing to death.

Tonight's prime example is the now - extinct Western, which was the rage in the early 1960s. It was so much of TV then, he notes, the classic gun duel scene on Western streets was done 200-300 times a week.

Directors were forced to adopt a variety of ways of showing the shootout. Kovacs shows it the usual way, then from an overhead view, then the ground view, (shooting up through clear plastic) and even the view from the hole left in a victim after the shootout.

From there, he has at the then - radical "adult Western," where the emphasis was not so much on how something happened as on why.

Whereupon a gunfighter who killed his brother tells a psychiatrist the deed was done "'cause he was always naggin' me."

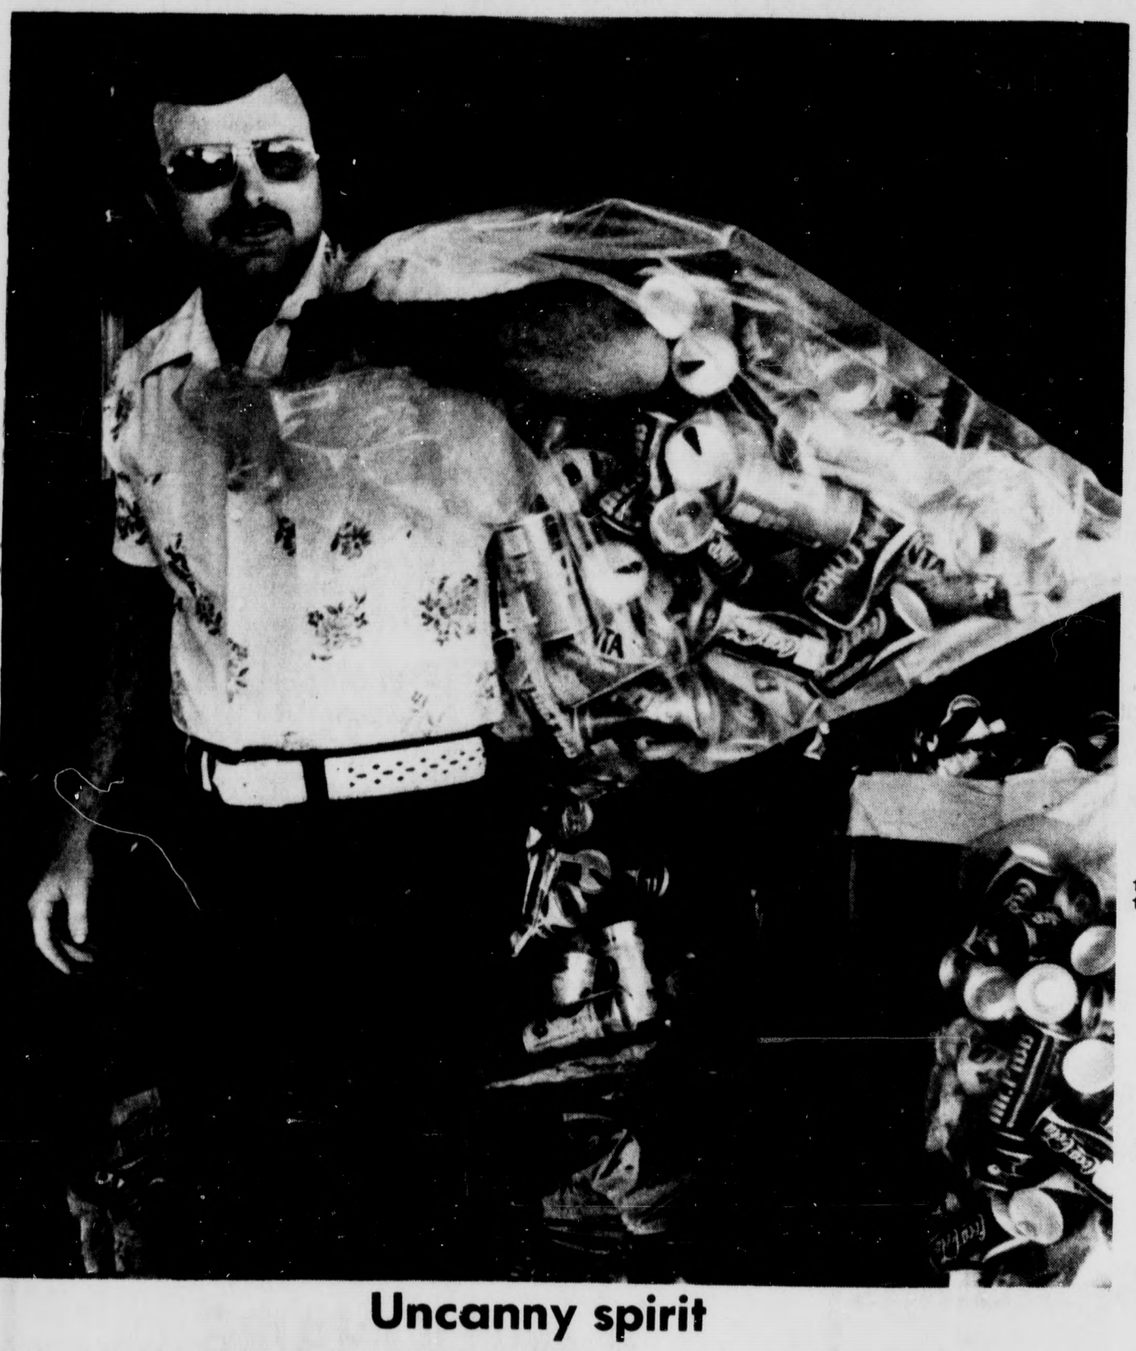
Then comes a "Twilight Zone" Western in which the baddie's six-gun suddenly turns into six bananas.

From there, it's on to "Rancid, the devil Horse," a gun-toting nag with a handlebar mustache, followed by a German Western.

Some of the gags work, some don't. And some older viewers who now recall only the classic Kovacs' bits may feel a bit disappointed. Which is to be expected when looking back at a legend.

Still, young and old alike should take a look back at the industrial - strength genius of Kovacs, whose work later was echoed in such hits as "Laugh In" and "Monty Python's Flying Circus."

Most of what he did is mighty funny even today and amply disproves his gentle jest that despite a small budget and no stars, tonight's show "still teethers on the brink of mediocrity."



Uncanny spirit

Pat Brosnan, the Livermore Jaycees honorary mayor candidate, has plenty of Christmas-like spirit for the club's aluminum can drive. Proceeds from the drive will go towards building a crisis center for Tri-valley teens at Buenas Vidas Youth Ranch. Can pick-up will be on April 23 and May 7. For further information or special pick-up arrangements, call Jayne or John Benson at 443-8987.

It's picturesque, but it has drawbacks as a solution to the housing shortage. There's the problem of accessibility, but more important is the size. The apparently cliff - hanging housing cluster is actually a three - foot - high miniature constructed of toothpicks on a stump, the work of Bob Hickox of Placerville, who took first place in a wood sculpture at the Humboldt County Fair. Nearly 25,000 toothpicks and 450 hours went into it.

EBMUD looks at more water cuts

OAKLAND — A revised water rationing plan that would call on East Bay Municipal Utility District customers to reduce consumption by another 40 gallons a day — will be presented to directors Tuesday night.

The proposal, which would provide household allotments of 240 gallons a day beginning May 1, has been drafted by staff members who are trying to balance dwindling water supplies whith the needs of the district's 1.1 million customers.

In addition, because of a "dismal" water projections, staff members are recommending another cut again in October, after the heavy water using summer months are over. They propose to reduce the household allocation to 195 gallons a day — 50 gallons a day per person (assuming a three - person household), and 45 gallons for outside use.

Household customers now are being allocated 280 gallons a day — 60 gallons a person and 100 gallons for exterior use.

Under the program proposed to go in effect May 1, the 240 - gallon allocation would allow 50 gallons a person and 90 gallons for outside use.

Customers granted additional water, in cases of need, would be given an extra 35 gallons per person per day.

The proposal provides that apartment complexes with less than five units be cut from the current 180 gallons a day per unit to 100 gallons a day. Apartment building exterior use would be reduced from 100 gallons a day to 90 gallons a day.

In October, the staff report suggests outside water for apartments be reduced to 45 gallons a day.

In addition, the staff is recommending that apartment buildings that have laundry rooms be required to keep them open. Officials say that some apartment owners and managers, to cut back on daily water usage, have shut off laundry rooms. This has put a strain on rationing imposed on commercial laundry establishments.

Larger apartment complexes (those with more than five units) currently are required to reduce last year's water use by 30 per cent. The staff plan calls for a 35 per cent reduction.

Industrial water users, now being asked to reduce water by 10 per cent over last year's use, would be required to cut back 15 per cent.

Public agencies and commercial establishments, now being asked to cut last year's use by 25 per cent, would be required to reduce use by 30 per cent.

And large apartments, commercial establishments, public agencies and industrial users, now required to use 50 per cent of what they did last year, would be required to reduce use by 65 per cent.

The revised rationing proposals were prompted by last week's news that district water runoff is significantly lower than predicted.

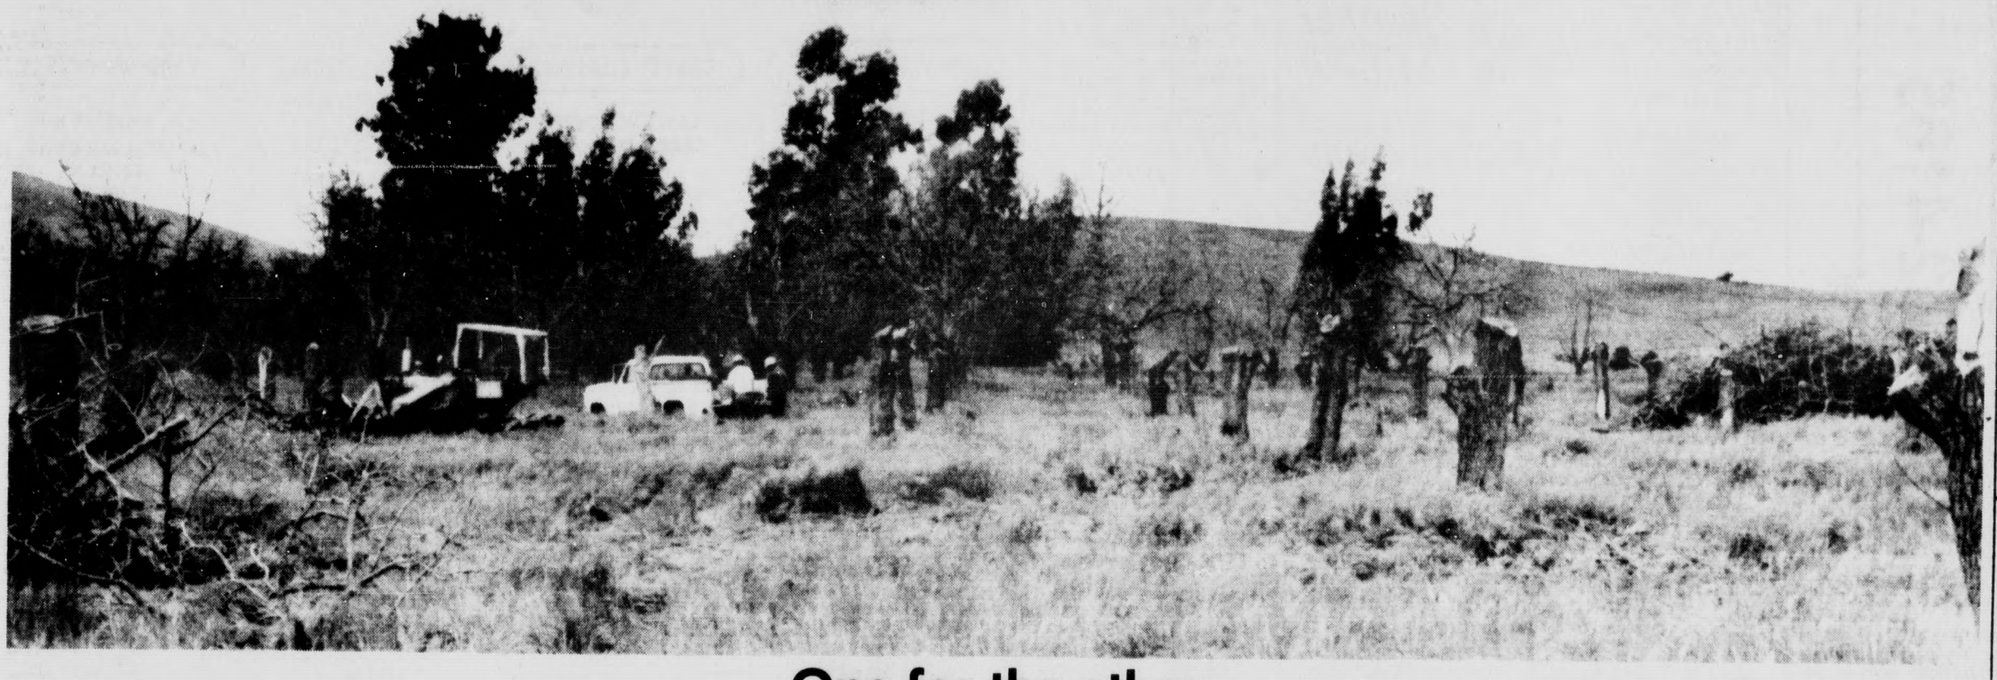
The rationing program now in effect — aimed at reducing overall consumption by 25 per cent — was based on the assumption the district would receive 100,000 acre feet of water this year.

New figures released last year indicate runoff may total only 65,000 acre feet. And officials say Pardee Reservoir, the district's major water supply source, will be dry in August.

The new plan is devised to allow the district to have some water reserves to begin next year. However, officials have not estimated the scope of the 1978 rationing program.

EBMUD General Manager John Harnett will outline the rationing plan and present an update on water supplies to board members during their regular meeting at 1:15 p.m. Tuesday at EBMUD headquarters, 2130 Adeline St., Oakland.

The public hearing, to give residents an opportunity to comment on the rationing program imposed two months ago, will be at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the same place.



One for the other

Before Twin Creeks South subdivision can go up, the trees must come down. The site is west of San Ramon Valley Road and south of Norris Canyon Road. The foreman in charge of the tree cutting said most of them were already dead. "This used to be a ranch but evidently no one has taken care of these trees for about five years," he said.

Ex-Moonie grateful to parents

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A former devotee of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon said Friday she agreed to talk to "deprogrammers" under emotional pressure from her parents but wasn't forced to cooperate.

"My parents were under a lot of emotional strain and I didn't want to put them through it any more," Jacqueline Katz, 21, of Wolcott, N.Y., said in her first public statement on her renunciation of the Rev. Mr. Moon.

But now, she told reporters, "I'm grateful my parents did what they did" even though she didn't feel that way initially.

She added that although her mother, in particular, put pressure on her to undergo deprogramming, she never was physically forced and felt she was free to refuse.

Katz and four other disciples of the Rev. Mr. Moon's Unification Church, including John Hovard, 23, of Danville, were handed over by a court last month to the conservatorship of their parents to undergo deprogramming by an anti-Moon group.

Katz and two others, Barbara Underwood, 25, of Portland, Ore., and Leslie Brown, 24, of Westfield, N.J., have renounced the church. The other two, Hovard and Jan Kaplan, 24, have not undergone deprogramming.

At a news conference, Katz and Underwood said they lied on the witness stand during their Superior Court trial in order to protect the Rev. Mr. Moon's church.

"We were prepared (by other church members) for the whole hearing like God's representatives," said Underwood.

"I felt that the future of the Unification Church was going to be affected by that trial, and I was chosen as one person in history to really represent God's will on earth," she said.

More rabies found in Contra Costa

MARTINEZ — A fourth case of animal rabies in Contra Costa County's wild animal population was confirmed April 5, according to Dr. John Baier, assistant health officer in charge of communicable disease control.

This time the animal was found in Pleasant Hill.

Dr. Baier strongly recommends that parents warn their children to keep away from any wild animals.

He advises parents to instruct their children to report any animal they see exhibiting aggressive behavior or signs of obvious illness.

After the child tells an adult, the adult should notify animal control.

The public should avoid direct contact with wild animals.

Skunks are one of the commonest carriers of rabies. So far this year, three skunks and one fox tested by the health department have been found to be rabid.

The skunk found April 5 was the first found to be rabid in Pleasant Hill. The other animals were found in the hills near Pinole.

Area residents are again advised to have all dogs vaccinated for rabies.

Nursing testimonies wanted

HAYWARD — Anyone wishing to speak their piece about nursing homes, rest homes or board and care facilities is invited to public hearings April 12, 13 from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Highland Hospital Auditorium, 1411 East 31st St., Oakland.

The Alameda County Consumer Affairs Commission is sponsoring the hearings in conjunction with United Neighbors in Action and Gray Panthers.

Anonymous written testimony will be accepted.

Complaints regarding patient care or personnel problems are encouraged to be aired.

For more information, call Hayward: 785-4240; Berkeley, 843-2244; Oakland, 874-5937.

Some unusual positions at this free star party

LIVERMORE — The unusual positions of the planets Jupiter and Saturn, which some horoscope casters blame for bad human tempers these days, will be visible through telescopes at a free public "star party" Saturday night at Del Valle Regional Park.

The park is located 11 miles south of downtown Livermore, off South Livermore Avenue and Mines Road.

While scientists and astronomers are not joining the astrologers in evaluating the planets' possible effect on human dispositions, they do say the unusual configuration adds interest to the celestial sights these spring nights.

Scientists from the Lawrence Livermore Lab astronomy club will bring along LLL's powerful Celestron telescopes to point to the public not only Jupiter and the colorful ringed Saturn but other sights such as Mercury, nebulae, double stars and other galaxies.

The party starts promptly at 7 p.m. in the new outdoor amphitheatre in the Del Valle campground (go over the bridge.) East Bay Parks naturalist Dick Angel will do a pre - dark briefing by showing slides of the planets and the spring sky. Action will then move to a viewing area on a hilltop, away from the lights of campfires.

Angel is an experienced teacher in all phases of natural science as a leading naturalist on East Bay Regional Park District staffs at Tilden Regional Park (Berkeley) and Sunol Regional Wilderness for nearly 14 years. He points out that Del Valle is an ideal place for star gazing with its remote location, clear skies and absence of competition from city lights.

Angel strongly advises wearing gloves and warm clothing and suggests bringing binoculars or telescopes for added pleasure.

If rainy or cloudy skies prevail, the April 16 party will be canceled. Future parties will be held June 18 and Sept. 10. If conditions are questionable, phone Angel or Jo Frisch at Sunol, 862 - 2244.

Del Valle's $1.50 entrance fee will be lifted shortly before 7 p.m. so stargazers can join the party free of charge. Overnight camping in one of the more than 100 spacious tree - shaded sites is $5 per night on a first - come, first - served basis (the campground was filled last weekend so call ahead.)

The sprawling park also offers good sailing along the five - mile length of the lake; excellent fishing; a concession stand; boat rentals; picnic grounds and plenty of trails.

On weekends, naturalist Angel leads hikes, demonstrations on fishing and nature - boating expeditions (75 cents for a spot on the sightseeing skiff.)

DANVILLE — It's not all guns and glory for sherifff's deputies.

Sometimes work involves something short of derring-do.

Take the case of the woman on Park Hill Road in Danville Friday night.

She heard noises coming from under her sink and, worried, telephoned the sheriff's department.

Deputy Ernie Rodigues was dutifully dispatched.

He also heard "scratching sounds from an area beneath the sink."

"I ascertained the responsible (party) to be a four - legged critter commonly referred to as a mouse," Rodigues concluded in his official report.

And another mystery was solved.

Board To Rule On Mill

Lesher News Bureau

SAN FRANCISCO — Air pollution officials are expected to decide this week the fate of Fibreboard Corp's Antioch paper mill.

The Bay Area Air Pollution control officer sought an abatement order against the mill's operations early this year after it was cited with 34 separate violations of district pollution standards in late 1976.

The pollution district's hearing board had ordered a variety of equipment to be installed to alleviate the condition.

Mt. Diablo club sets camp-out

DIABLO — A weekend camp-out to celebrate "April on the Mountain" is planned April 16-17 by the Mt. Diablo Interpretative Association.

The organization, formed to promote interpretive, scientific and educational projects to help others learn more about Mt. Diablo, will provide activities at the Live Oak Camp Area both days.

Camping, with no reservations, will be $4 a night. Day use will be $1.50. The program includes talks about the geology of Mt. Diablo, dinner, a campfire slide program, starwalk, bird walk and a pancake breakfast, and a "Save Mt. Diablo Diablo" picnic.

The association was organized as a non-profit group in 1974.

So far, the group has prepared a check-list of birds on the mountain and a free leaflet pointing out other features of interest.

A trails committee is making an inventory and assessment of existing and proposed trails, and another group has been w working on a nature trail near the summit.

"There are lots of projects available just waiting for an eager volunteer," said Barbara Jean Smith of Concord, spokesperson for the group.

Memberships are available for students and other individuals, families and groups.

For information about memberships or the camp-out, write MDIA, Box 250, Diablo, 94528, or call 682-0812.

This approch to Donner Canyon on Mt. Diablo's northeast side will be open to the public soon, says the Mt. Diablo Interpretative Association, which is dedicated to helping others learn more about Mt. Diablo. The group plans an "April on the Mountain" camp-out for April 16 and 17.

DECADE:
TO GET REAL TASTE IN A LOW 'TAR' WE SPENT TEN YEARS REINVENTING THE CIGARETTE.

In the past everyone knew what a cigarette was supposed to do: taste good. However, tobacco taste has traditionally come from what is known as tobacco 'tar.'

In order for us to reduce this 'tar' while maintaining taste we had to virtually reinvent the cigarette. And that can't be done overnight. In fact it took us ten years to develop a "Total System" capable of delivering truly satisfying taste in a low 'tar' cigarette.

What we mean by "Total System."

A high-filtration low 'tar' cigarette is a complex system of interacting parts.

The tobacco. The filter. And even the paper.

Our objective was to focus on all these parts and arrange them in perfect balance with each other. Only by concentrating on the parts were we able to perfect the whole.

The Tobacco. "Flavor Packing"™ plus fifteen tobaccos boost taste.

We've developed a system called "Flavor Packing" that allows us to concentrate a special patented tobacco flavorant in each Decade cigarette.

This is in addition to our special taste blend of fifteen fine tobaccos, including exotic Turkish, full bodied Burley, and Bright, a tobacco known for its smoothness.

The Filter. Unique "Taste Channel" gives first puff impact.

The Decade filter is a combination of modern laser technology, plus our own exclusive research design. Simply, we've created a channel within the filter to give you that first puff impact you've come to expect from only the higher 'tar' cigarettes. Which means you get taste from first puff to last.

The Paper. High porosity paper controls burn rate.

For Decade we use only high porosity cigarette paper. Ordinary paper inhibits the burn rate, which can diminish the taste and create the need to pull harder when you drag.

With Decade's high porosity paper however, you get an efficient burn rate that delivers optimum taste with a minimum of 'tar.'

The result. A completely new kind of low 'tar' cigarette.

So try a pack of Decade for yourself. Regular or Menthol. And after one taste we think you'll agree that our last 10 years were well worth the effort.

Only 5 mg. 'tar'.

Regular and Menthol.
